Alaskan Native Bennis Crowned New Miss Hozhoni

Alaskan Native Jennifer Bennis was crowned Miss Hozhoni 2010-2011 on March 27 during the 46th annual Hozhoni Days PowWow, a two-day event capping off a week of cultural celebrations at Fort Lewis College in Durango. Emotions ran high as the reigning Miss Hozhoni, Seratha Lergie, passed on her title and gave a welcoming embrace to Bennis, her successor. Bennis is a Fort Lewis college student from Dillingham, Alaska, and an Alaskan Native of the Curyung Tribe.

Whitt Re-elected

By Ace Stryker
The Southern Ute Drum

George Whitt isn't going anywhere.

Ignacio's mayor secured a second four-year term as mayor of the Town of Ignacio in a local election Tuesday, April 6. Whitt won by a margin of 86 votes to challenger Ena Millich's 49, according to results provided to the Drum by the town.

Whitt said one of his primary goals for his second term is relatively simple: "Try to keep everybody happy."

"The town will go by the Constitution and our ordinances," he said "I'm open for anybody. They can call me any time they want to. ... That's the way government is supposed to be run."

Millich, a town trustee, was not required to forfeit her seat to run and will retain it.

Five candidates also campaigned for three openings on the Town Board in elections decided April 6. Incumbents Ray Larson and Laurence Bartley drew enough votes to retain their seats with 85 and 89, respectively, and Brad Egger joined the Board with 77. The other trustee candidates were Thomas Atencio, with 62 votes, and Mark Blevins, with 46.

Larson and Bartley will each serve three-year terms and Egger, as the winner with fewest votes, will serve two, according to Town Manager Balty Quintana.

'April Assault': Elco Triumphs by TKO in Round 3

By Joel Priest
Special to the Drum

Mohammad Said is a well-traveled man: Middle Eastern by birth, Brazilian by residence, with 43 pro bouts on his ledger.

Throw a women's world champ (Layla McCarter; 32-13-5, 7 KO), a men's world champ (Giovanni Andrade; 61-12-0, 50 KO), and a known Las Vegas, Nev., trainer (Luis Tapia) into his corner for guidance, and you'd think he'd have a potent blend for success.

Not at "April Assault" on Saturday, April 3.

"I think the ref did the right thing," said the middleweight, winner of his fourth straight bout. "That was a bad cut, and if the fight would have continued it would have only got worse."

Amid the crowd's clamoring for the action to continue, Garcia, who played the fight cagey and analyzed Said (33-9-1, 24 KO) for the first round and a half, took the announcer's mic and tried to mellow the mob, who feared an egg had been laid too early for Easter.

"I only got a few more left in me," he said, and thanked all those in attendance.

"That's my home, there's a lot of fans," he said afterward, referring to his unbeaten mark in town (12-0), "and I don't want to let them down. When I fight there, they give me plenty of time to train the right way. Sometimes I've taken fights in other places like a week before, and that's not been good.

"I don't have a problem with a rematch," he continued, "but I think I'm going forward. If it would have been, like, a loss or draw for me, then sure. But I'm just going to go forward. ... Why look back?"

Turning 39 next month, Garcia's next target could be 24-year-old "No Doubt" Austin Trout (21-0-0, 13 KO) of Las Cruces, N.M., currently the WBC's No. 11-ranked super welterweight (154-pound limit), but the WBA's No. 1 contender. "I always train hard," said Garcia. "Like my brother told me: 'You've always got to be ready.'"

Said, recipient of an eight-count after Garcia's blow, had won eight straight and ten of his last 13 bouts coming in, losing to Renan St. Juste, Sebastian Demers, and imprisoned James Kirkland, all current or former champs in the various organizations' middle-to super-middle ranks, with a combined record of 76-3-1 at present. Those he'd beaten were, at their most recent, a collective 18-69-1 entry.

"I'd especially like to thank the Southern Ute Tribe for sponsoring me this fight," he noted. "It really helped a lot!"

Tribe; Entities Hear Concerns

By Robert Ortiz
The Southern Ute Drum

Southern Ute tribal members met with Tribal Council and representatives of the Tribe's various organizations March 23 to voice concerns and ask questions at the General Meeting at the Sky Ute Casino Resort's Event Center.

Administrative staff including Chief Financial Officer Brian Zink, Casino General Manager Matt Olin, Tribal Health Department Director Tom Duran and Executive Officer Johnny Valdez offered presentations and fielded questions.

Chairman's Report

Southern Ute Chairman Matthew Box began the meeting with a report highlighting Tribal Council activities, including an announcement of newly hired Colorado Commission of Indian Affairs Executive Secretary Carol Harvey.

Box also touched on an assessment to be done on the old casino and its future. The assessment will determine the cost to renovate versus rebuilding with no determination on demolition at this point, he said. One of the prospects for the old facility would be to convert it into an assisted living center for elders.

One of the topics of greatest concern came after a report of the Elders Committee, which was suspended several months ago.

"Only the meetings of the committee have been suspended," Box said, adding that a task force would provide a comprehensive report as to its future.

The task force will contain four elder committee members and four tribal members tasked with developing bylaws for the future committee.

The suspension of the Ethics Code also drew numerous concerns from the tribal membership in attendance. Box explained that pending requests will be reviewed and that the draft protection order is being revamped. "Recall of tribal officials, oath of office and the tribal Constitution are still in place," he said.

Finance Report

Zink's report of the Tribe's finances highlighted the investments it has been making recently. He said he has been hard at work "creating an endowment, principle remaining invested, insuring longevity and perpetuity, thus creating savings account to line and investment while not dipping into principle."

Tribal elder Jim Jefferson voiced his concern about tribal members being "cut off" from speaking during the General Meetings. Others shared his concerns.

"This is our chance to talk, not for you to talk to us, and you had better keep the meeting open for tribal members," Kevin Frost said. "It's been five months since the last general meeting to discuss and address concerns."

Zink finished his presentation by addressing concerns of tribal members about tax issues. One of the major concerns facing tribal members when filing their 2009 taxes was showing proof of living and working on the Reservation. Zink urged members to not ignore the notices sent by the Internal Revenue Service, but to contact the Finance Department or a tax advisor.

Casino Report

During his presentation, Olin shared revenue numbers for the hotel, slots, gift shop, food and beverage and bowling. Slots and bowling revenue showed a decline during the winter months as a hard winter kept patrons from the casino, he said. But the hotel, gift shop and food and beverage services showed an increase during the same time.

Tribal member Tara Vigil expressed concern over "outrageous prices and rates for use of the Casino's Event Center," asking why everything was being itemized. Olin explained that all tribal members receive a 20 percent discount. Marketing Director Ben Fernandez said the casino follows a model based on other successful tribal casinos.

Olin said the casino plans to use focus groups with tribal members in April to brainstorm ideas to better the service of the casino.

Some were concerned non-tribal members are taking advantage of the tribal discount. Olin said this is true of some employees but

Kidney Corner: 'End Stage CKD II: Hemodialysis'

By Dr. Mark Saddler
Durango Nephrology Associates

As discussed in the last edition of the Kidney Corner, "kidney failure" describes the situation when the kidney function is too low to support healthy living.

One option to improve symptoms of advanced kidney failure is hemodialysis. This life-preserving treatment removes toxic substances from the blood of patients. It does not promote healing of the patient's own kidneys, nor does it harm the kidneys, but it keeps people alive and potentially gets rid of harmful symptoms in patients with kidney failure.

Hemodialysis is performed by circulating blood outside the patient's body over a membrane that removes harmful substances by a process of diffusion, the movement of substances from an area of high concentration to an area of low concentration. This diffusion occurs across a membrane which forms part of the dialysis circuit. A large machine is used to pump the blood, moderate the flow and protect against harmful substances entering the circuit, but the membrane itself (sometimes called an "artificial kidney") is only about the size of a rolled-up piece of paper.

Hemodialysis is tiresome and difficult for patients because it usually needs to be done for three-and-a-half to four hours, three times per week, and is usually done in a dialysis center. This involves considerable travel time for patients. Some dialysis patients say it feels like having an extra part-time job since it takes up so much of their time.

During dialysis, patients can read, watch television, nap or chat. Durango Dialysis Center, located in Bodo Park in Durango, is an option for dialysis patients in the Ignacio and Durango area.

Performing dialysis requires the presence of a dialysis access: a way of accessing the blood to allow sufficient volume to be delivered to the dialysis membrane. This is best done using a dialysis fistula, a surgically created connection between an artery and a vein, usually in the arm. Needles are placed in the fistula to access the blood for dialysis. Making a good fistula requires an experienced surgeon and is done in an operating room, though it's only a minor procedure for which the patient is usually not admitted to the hospital. One of the keys to getting a good fistula which will work well for dialysis is to place the fistula early enough to allow it to develop well before the patient needs dialysis. Most fistulas can not be used for at least three months after they are placed.

Another option for access for dialysis is an arteriovenous graft, also usually in the arm. This is a surgically implanted loop of synthetic material that lies under the skin of the arm. Grafts are generally not the first choice for dialysis access because of the tendency to become infected or clot.

Finally, a central venous catheter can be used for dialysis. This type of access has an external port which is used to connect for dialysis. Unfortunately, this results in a high risk of blood infection, so this is type of dialysis access is only used as a last resort.

In the next issue, we will discuss more issues related to hemodialysis - and subsequently peritoneal dialysis, a different form of dialysis which is done at home - and kidney transplantation.

Ranger Honored for Answering Call of Duty

Jeff Abdella of the Southern Ute Rangers received several commendations in Tribal Council April 6 for responding to a call in which he performed CPR on an unconscious woman for eight minutes before help arrived. Justice and Regulatory Deputy Director Carl Smith presented the awards, one from the La Plata County Sheriff's Office and one from his own department.

By Ace Stryker
The Southern Ute Drum

Southern Ute Ranger Jeff Abdella was commended April 6 in Tribal Council for responding to a call that left him performing CPR on a 71-year-old woman for eight minutes before help arrived.

Abdella arrived at the woman's home on River Rim Road south of Durango on Thursday, March 1 and found her unconscious, not breathing and without a pulse. Using his law enforcement training, he aided her on his own until others arrived to take her to the hospital.

"It was the longest eight minutes of my life," Abdella said. "It was pretty interesting."

The woman was later pronounced dead at the hospital, but Carl Smith, deputy director of the Department of Justice and Regulatory, said Abdella's actions were nonetheless "going above and beyond the call of duty."

"Your efforts helped sustain the life of the victim until she could be transported to the hospital," said Smith, who presented Abdella with a plaque, adding he "upheld the highest tradition for law enforcement."

Abdella also received recognition for meritorious service from Deputy Mathew Webb of the La Plata County Sheriff's Office. Abdella's father came in from California for the presentation, and a group of Southern Ute Rangers, including his brother, Dan Abdella, also attended.

Regarding the incident, Abdella said it didn't strike him as anything too different from what he faces daily on the job. He said when it comes to health emergencies, it's "luck of the draw" - sometimes they arise unexpectedly, other times he'll go weeks without encountering something so urgent.

He said one thing's for sure, though: experiences like that remind him why he became a public servant.

"It kind of fires you back up for the job that you're doing," he said.

Thomas to Become First Woman President of Fort Lewis College

Media Release
Fort Lewis College

The Board of Trustees for Fort Lewis College has selected Dr. Dene Kay Thomas to become the first woman president to lead the college in its 99-year history.

Thomas, currently president of Lewis-Clark State College in Lewiston, Idaho, will begin her duties as the eighth president of Fort Lewis College on July 1.

"Dr. Thomas has a breadth of skills that has made her an effective president. Fort Lewis College will benefit from her knowledge of the academy and how to lead it, and from her external experiences that will give the college the credibility and the visibility that it deserves," said Richard G. Ballantine, chair of the board. "She is a good listener, and she is eager to lead Fort Lewis in becoming an even stronger public liberal arts college."

Thomas said she was excited to take the post.

"I look forward to working at an institution that values liberal arts so highly and is important historically to the education of Native Americans," said Thomas, who will be formally presented to the campus during the April 2, board meeting. "I was inspired by what I saw at Fort Lewis. It is clear to me that education comes alive at Fort Lewis College with its beautiful campus in this breathtaking mountain setting. FLC, with a faculty dedicated to excellence in teaching and student research, has such exciting potential. Enormous potential. We will work together and build.

"This is a bittersweet transition for me, because Lewis-Clark State has been such a rewarding experience," she continued. "I have been deeply committed to higher education at Lewis-Clark State College for the past nine years, and it will be wrenching to leave. I pledge that same commitment at Fort Lewis College."

Thomas embarked on her professional academic career as a single mother at the age of 30 when she pursued a bachelor's degree in English from Southwest Minnesota State University in Marshall, Minn.. She then earned a doctorate in English at the University of Minnesota.

She taught writing at the University of Idaho, where she was an associate professor before undertaking several administrative positions on campus, including vice provost of academic affairs. She became president of Lewis-Clark State, one of four state-supported higher education institutions, in 2001.

During her tenure at Lewis-Clark State, Thomas reversed declining enrollment trends, restructured the college to better meet its mission, and increased the visibility of the college through an energetic public relations and marketing initiative. She worked closely with the Nez Perce tribe at Lewis-Clark State, the only institution that teaches the Nez Perce language.

She and her husband, Gordon, an English professor and director of writing at the University of Idaho, have three adult daughters.

"Dr. Thomas has an underlying belief in the value of the liberal arts tradition, and has shown her commitment to Native American education in her work with the Nez Perce tribe," Ballantine said. "She is an ideal fit for Fort Lewis, Durango and the many broader communities that the college serves."

Three Go Distance On Undercard

By Joel Priest
Special to the Drum

Boxing, like most sports, can be a family affair.

And for Brittany Cruz and Mike Montoya, fighting in the two final undercard bouts at April 3's "April Assault" inside Sky Ute Casino Resort's Events Center, the connections aren't too surprising relative to what small-town fans normally see.

One sparred with a relative, the other's mind had relatives sparring with it, and both honored their family names with four-round, unanimous-decision wins.

Cruz's red-and-white attire may have looked familiar, and if it did, it's because Ignacio fight fans have seen something similar worn by her aunt, former IFBA bantamweight champ Terri Cruz. Eighteen years younger, the 20-year-old featherweight improved to 7-2-1 (1 KO) already with a three-sided 40-36 shutout over Albuquerque's Jessica Sanchez (1-3-2).

they helped me push for the win, helped me dig down for a little something extra."

He found that little extra in his light heavyweight bout against Victor Filero of Bloomfield, all. The crowd was great, helped push me along. I just want to stay as active as I can. I'm having a hard time getting fights, and with this win it's helping me take it to the next level."

From the undercard's finish back to its start, bantamweight David Springer of Las Vegas, Nev., entered not looking to balance his win-loss totals, but his win-draw totals. Starting his career with three straight toss-ups, Springer earned his third win in four tries with a 39-37, 37-39, 39-37 split decision over Bloomfield's Aaron Fernandez. Given his frequent holding of Fernandez (0-3), Springer (3-1-3) heard plenty of "boos" from the stands, but he also landed enough "oohs" and "aahs" to stay ahead.

Servando Lopez of Farmington, N.M., and Reginald Jackson of Bloomfield then followed in victory, but didn't leave their results up to the judges. Lopez (2-0, 2 KO), fighting Las Vegas' Jamal Hodges at super welterweight, nearly downed Hodges (1-8-1, 1 KO) in Round 1, and trapped him on the ropes a couple more times. The last forced referee Mark Nelson to halt the beating, 1:31 into Round 3.

Denver's Brittany Cruz (left) lowers the boom and lowers opponent Jessica Sanchez of Albuquerque, N.M., during their featherweight clash at April 3's "April Assault." Cruz won unanimously, 40-36 on all three judges' cards.

"I feel good," Cruz said. "Young, up-and-coming ... I want to make a big name for Colorado."

Sanchez clearly took the initiative in Round 1, but as Cruz's defense and punching accuracy improved, Sanchez began to slow despite her corner's shouts for her to follow up quicker on her own punches and out of breaks. And in Round 4, Cruz's power shots began landing late, providing an exclamation point for the fans - and judges.

"Honestly that's not my top performance. I came off a win in December, but took a two-month break due to a foot accident," she said. "I know I have way better, better potential. A lot of people saw that the fight was good, but they only saw the mediocre skill level, honestly. But I did my best."

A "Jr." suffix has been seen attached to Montoya's name on older fight results; Mike Sr. was likely hollering instructions then, just as he was in Montoya's 39-37 (x3) verdict Saturday in which one simple vocal order stood above all else: "Hit 'im, dammit! Hit 'im!"

"Yeah, that's my dad," laughed Montoya, a product of Colorado Springs' Old School Boxing, "and my brother. I've had them in my corner my whole life and N.M. Filero (2-1, 1 KO) looked to dictate the pace from the opening bell, likely taking the first round, but Montoya refused to wilt. Showing a strong left hand to Filero's body on multiple occasions, Montoya (3-1-1, 2 KO) absorbed and discarded Filero's best blows en route to a fine introduction to the Sky Ute fans.

David Springer (right), of Las Vegas, Nev., gets low to throw a body shot at Aaron Fernandez of Bloomfield, N.M., during their bantamweight bout April 3 at "April Assault." Springer won by split decision, 39-37, 37-39, 39-37.

"He was a tough guy. I remember him from amateurs a lot. And he always fought a weight class above me, but I knew it was going to be a tough fight coming in," Montoya said. "We worked hard for it, and I just gave it my McCall, son of former WBC heavyweight champ Oliver, last October, Jackson (2-1, 2 KO) faced Las Vegas newcomer Lawrence Ashurst, whose midsection hinted the fight might end very early on. But above the midsection was a heart, and Ashurst - outweighed by only 268-265, but well over a foot shorter - managed a surprise knockdown of the 'Gentle Giant' in Round 1.

But after missing later on a haymaker right and slipping to the canvas, Ashurst became one of Sky Ute's first clean knockout victims, counted out by Nelson at 2:34 of the round after Jackson struck back.

"Overhand right, top of the head," Ashurst described the punch that sent him staggering back to the ropes, then onto his shell. "The other guy backed out, and I was the last call so I said I'll fight. Pro debut - I think it's hot! And nerve-wracking, but everything's a learning curve ... I'd fight him again."

Colorado Springs' Mike Montoya lets Victor Filero of Bloomfield, N.M., know the end is near during their light heavyweight bout April 3 at "April Assault." Montoya claimed a four-round unanimous decision, 39-37, 39-37, 39-37.

Stepping Into a New Season

Ignacio senior Venicia Sala (left) denies a pass attempt by Pagosa Springs' Natasha Medici during the Lady Bobcats' 2010 opener - a 9-0 loss - on March 23. With 17 players on the roster, numbers are well up for IHS (0-1, 0-1 3A Southwestern) and the team resumes league action, post-Spring Break, this weekend at home. Coming off a 10-0 non-league loss at Rye last Saturday, Center (0-2, 0-1) visits IHS Field on April 9 at 4 p.m., and defending SWL champs Ridgway come April 10 at 11 a.m., after their April 8 non-leaguer at Delta.

that it would not be permitted any longer.

Tribal member Estelle Monte-Jimenez asked why the food being served in the restaurant was not authentic Native American food. Olin said the casino has sent a tribal member to culinary school and these items are now being added.

Health Report

Duran gave a presentation of the current functions of the Health Department and the Health Center.

Some tribal members expressed concerns that bills to service providers were not being paid. Duran said the CHS regulation has no authority to provide payment of services under the CHS program unless funds are in fact available.

Tribal member Rick Jefferson asked why there was no Indian Health Service staff at Mercy. Duran explained there was no agreement in place with Mercy and the Health Department to have staff on duty. Duran closed by saying the department is working on restructuring diabetic care at the clinic and improving relationships between patients and staff through a Diabetic Management Team. He said there are now certified diabetic educators on staff: Susan Turner and Larron Dolence.

Open Discussion

Rick Jefferson asked why the Ethics Code was being suspended, saying that the code was a benefit to the Tribal membership.

“It is the responsibility of Tribal Council [to act in the] best interest of the tribal membership and employees,” he said, adding suspension of the code is a “motion of unconstitutionality” and not a satisfactory response when dealing with tribal member concerns.

Box said Tribal Council will revamp the Ethics Code and that all requests will receive due process.

Tribal elder Dorothy Wing summed up the concerns of the membership thusly: “Take care of us, so that we may praise you like a chief, like back when. ... Take care of our children, our future and our great-grandchildren. Let's work together as a tribe.”

Have Thy Staff For the Sake of Safety

By Don Oliver
Special to the Drum

decide which staff is best for you.

When you start your quest for the perfect staff, you will find there are several different models from which to choose.

The type most seen on the rivers is one that folds up and slips into a holster when not in use. I am not particularly fond of that model, because it can be difficult to take apart when sand and water work their way into the joints. Also, if you let it fall into the water while fishing, its length can make it hard to move around. For safety, it should be folded up and put in the holster when not in use.

I have seen some beautiful hand-made wood staffs carried onto the river. While very stout, these can be heavy and again can get in your way when you begin to fish. Ski poles are sometimes converted for river use. They are light, not very long, and fairly strong. The only shortcoming is that in deeper water, you'll be up to your elbow in cold water due to its fixed length.

My personal choice for a wading staff, and therefore the gold-star winner, is one made by Leki. The length of the staff is adjustable. This allows a comfortable fit no matter how tall you are. It also lets you adjust the staff for the depth of the water. The handle of the staff is a pistol-style cork grip, which I like because it's very easy to hold onto and gives me more stability as I navigate around slippery rocks and slimy river bottoms. Another benefit of the pistol grip and adjustable staff length is that I can place the grip behind my cheeks and lean against it when I get tired.

To keep my wading staff handy and close to me, I attach it to a heavy-duty retractor made by Gear Keeper. While most staffs come with a long cord to tie to your waders, I find the retractor keeps my staff close to me and away from my feet while fly-fishing.

Regardless of what type of wading staff you like, I urge you to get one. Once you start using a staff on a regular basis, you will find yourself reaching for it, even if you accidentally leave it at home while on a fly-fishing trip. In fact, I bet you'll become like one of my best fishing buddies and think about taking it into the shower with you.

Man-kind has used walking and wading staffs since the beginning of time. All you have to do is watch Hollywood's interpretation of the Old Testament religious stories and you'll always see someone with a staff.

The reason you'll see people with staffs is for safety and protection. Probably the most quoted Psalm, the 23rd, plainly states the "Shepherd's staff will protect me." I know after reading that statement my friends who are ministers or dedicated church-goers wish I would spend more time reading the Bible instead of the fly-fishing gospels of Orvis, Cabela's, L.L. Bean, and "A River Runs Through It."

These philosophical thoughts are the result of a recent article in a fly-fishing magazine that rated various rods, reels, waders, boots, vests, jackets, etc. But what they didn't rate, or even mention, were wading staffs.

Being of a mature age and having taken more than one fall while fly-fishing, I believe a wading staff should be a required piece of equipment, like seat belts and airbags. I would even go as far as to have had it slipped into the 2,000-page health care bill. Since that won't happen, and the fly-fishing rating gurus won't discuss wading staffs, I will help you

Farmers: Resources Conservation Can Help

If you're an agricultural producer and have resource concerns or just want to improve operations on your farm or ranch, I would like to assist.

Let me first introduce myself. My name is Ed McCaw. I work for the Natural Resources Conservation Service, which is an agency under the U.S. Department of Agriculture. I am the Southern Ute tribal liaison, meaning I work to support the Southern Ute Tribe, tribal members, and private landowners with conservation practices and services. I am a lifelong resident of Ignacio and currently active in the farming and ranching industry.

The NRCS offers a wide variety of programs and incentives to assist you in conserving the natural resources we all cherish. Programs currently being offered include the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP), the Wildlife Habitat Incentive Program (WHIP), the Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP) and a host of others. These programs provide cost-share incentives to assist you with conservation projects that fit your needs and operations.

If incentive programs do not fit your need, we offer a variety of technical assistance services. We can tailor a conservation plan that will meet your goals and objectives for the coming years. The great thing about conservation planning is you control the process and it's for your benefit. What do all these services and programs cost? It's free – and it supports conserving our natural resources.

If you would like more information, I'd be happy to sit down and visit about your particular farm or ranch. I'm located in Ignacio at the Southern Ute Tribe's Water Resources Building at 601 County Road 517 (between BIA Forestry and Custom Farm). Or, you can give me a call at 970-563-0178.

Notice of Proposed Changes to Reservation Air Code and Title V Operating Permit Program and Request For Comments

The Southern Ute Indian Tribe/State of Colorado Environmental Commission is seeking comments from interested persons on certain changes to the Commission's Reservation Air Code including the Commission's Title V operating permit program ("Code") under the federal Clean Air Act. The changes are those required by the United States Environmental Protection Agency as a condition to EPA's approval of the Application for Approval of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe's 40 CFR Part 70 Operating Permit Program, as well as changes recommended by EPA.

I. Statement of time, place and nature of rule-making proceeding.

In addition to receiving written comments as provided below, the Environmental Commission will hold a public hearing at the Durango Community Recreation Center, Windom Meeting Room, 2700 Main Avenue, Durango, Colorado on Monday, May 10, 2010, beginning at 5:30 p.m., to receive public comment on the proposed changes.

II. Legal authority under which the rule is proposed.

Legal authority is vested in the Southern Ute Indian Tribe/State of Colorado Environmental Commission by the Intergovernmental Agreement Between the Southern Ute Indian Tribe and the State of Colorado Concerning Air Quality Control on the Southern Ute Indian Reservation dated December 13, 1999 ("IGA"), tribal law (Resolution of the Council of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe # 00-09), State law (C.R.S. § 24-62-101), and federal law (Act of October 18, 2004, Pub. L. No. 108-336, 118 Stat.1354) to adopt rules and regulations for air quality programs applicable to all lands within the exterior boundaries of the Southern Ute Indian Reservation.

III. Deadline for submission of written comments.

Please provide any comments on the proposed changes to the Code no later than Friday, May 7, 2010. Please submit your comments to Brenda Jarrell, Air Quality Program Manager for the Southern Ute Indian Tribe, by one of the following methods:

- Fax: 970-563-0384
- Hand delivery: Air Quality Program, Environmental Programs Division, Southern Ute Indian Tribe, 116 Mouache Dr., Ignacio, Colorado, 81137

IV. Summary description of proposed Code changes.

The Code was adopted by the Commission on November 12, 2008, and incorporated into the Application for Approval of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe's 40 CFR Part 70 Operating Permit Program, which was submitted by the Tribe to the EPA in January 2009. In a recent letter, EPA has expressed its intent to approve the Tribe's Part 70 Program Application, contingent on certain required changes to the Code. EPA also recommends several changes aimed at strengthening the Code.

A. Summary of Required Changes.

EPA's required changes can be categorized as follows:

- 1. Modification of Provisions to Satisfy 40 CFR Part 70 Requirements. Most of EPA's required changes involve either the addition of sentences, phrases, or clauses or the deletion of certain words or phrases in order to make the provisions more closely conform to the wording used in 40 CFR Part 70. The required modifications usually result in the Code provisions exactly matching the corresponding provisions in 40 CFR Part 70.
- 2. Additional Defined Terms.

The following are among the additional defined terms required by EPA:

- "Applicable requirement"
- "Designated representative"
- "Part 70 program"

3. Federal Processes. In several instances, EPA is requiring the Code to include provisions found in 40 CFR Part 70 that authorize certain EPA processes, such as those used by EPA to reopen permits for cause and object to tribal-issued permits.

4. Acid Rain Provisions. Included among the required changes are certain provisions that refer to aspects of the acid rain regulations promulgated under title IV of the Clean Air Act.

B. Summary of Recommended Changes.

EPA's recommended changes include the addition of "alternative operating scenario (AOS)" and "approved replicable methodology (ARM)" as defined terms. The other recommended changes involve modifications to ensure that the Code provisions are worded exactly like the corresponding provisions in 40 CFR Part 70.

V. Where a complete copy of the proposed rule can be obtained.

A copy of the Code with the proposed changes shown in redlining is available upon request from the Tribe's Air Quality Program Manager who can be contacted by e-mail, mail, fax, or in person at the addresses noted above. The Code showing the proposed changes also is available at the following website: http://www.southern-ute.nsn.us/suepd/links/commission\_related\_documents.html

In Loving Memory of Gemini Lydia Chavez Cloud

There is so many ways to say goodbye since the day you had to fly but nothing can change how much it hurts us inside the day you said goodbye you were so innocent and pure that's why god said it was your turn so sweet and so cute, your laugh when we played games with you here now then gone when all is said and done but it's for the best 'cuz now you can rest with god in the heavens above to watch over us all with love still it's hard to move on now since you left we don't know how but for I'll say a prayer just that your happy way up there we'll miss you greatly more than you know the day god said it's your time to go so sleep tight and dream something new and remember we all love you Gemini

Love,
Auntie Sierra

In Loving Memory of Gemini Lydia Chavez-Cloud, My Beautiful Angel

Gemini we all miss you very much I thank god that he did lend u to us for 1 month you are a beautiful angel. I remember when I watched you come out of your mom I cried you were so beautiful, I will never forget you you are always in our hearts. I love you babe Girl, u would have been a year old on 3/28/09. I have all my memories of the month we got to spend with you and I will never forget. Rest in Peace my Little Angel granddaughter. I will see you again one day.

Love you always,
Grandma Bernadine,
Aunt Nadine,
Uncle Jordan, Uncle Julius & Cousin Aniah

The Lent Child
I'll send you for a little time, a child of mine He said, For you to love while she lives, and mourn when she is dead. It may be six or seven years, or twenty-two or three. But will you till I call her back take care of her for me?

She'll bring her charms to gladden you, and shall her stay be brief, You'll have her lovely memories as solace for your grief.

I cannot promise she will stay, since all from earth return. But there are lessons taught down there I want this child to learn.

I've looked the wide world over in my search for teachers true, And from the throngs that crowd life's lanes, I have selected you. Now will you give her all your love, nor think the lanor vain, Nor hate me when I come to call to take her back again?

I fancied that I heard them say, Dear Lord, Thy will be done. For all the joy thy child shall bring, the risk of grief we'll run. We'll shelter her with tenderness, we'll love her while we may, and for the happiness we've known, will ever grateful stay. But shall the angels call for her much sooner than we planned. We'll brave the bitter grief that comes and try to understand.

Annual Easter Egg Hunt Blessed With Blue Skies

All photos Jeremy Wade Shockley/SU DRUM

The Southern Ute Police Department hosted its annual Easter egg hunt under clear skies April 3, at the SunUte Community Center's multi-purpose field. Community members of all ages joined in on the event. The hunt resembled a full-out race with participants broken into various age categories, each filling their own baskets with the colorful plastic eggs. Winning eggs garnered a full Easter basket of goodies and plush animal toys celebrating the season. Don Folsom, SUPD's senior community resource officer, was on the megaphone coordinating the activities. The Easter bunny was kept busy by the youngest children, who were eager to shake hands and hug for family photo opportunities.

Council Touts Benefits of Education

photos Jeremy Wade Shockley/SU DRUM

Local tribal-member high school students met with Tribal Council members during a luncheon at the Sky Ute Casino Resort on April 6. The purpose of the luncheon was to bring tribal leaders together with students to communicate and share ideas in an informal setting. Angel Ortiz, introducing himself here, was one of many students sharing a table with Councilman Steve Herrera during the luncheon. Pictured below is Council Lady Ramona Eagle.

By Ace Stryker
The Southern Ute Drum

Members of the Southern Ute Tribal Council met April 6 with tribal members of high school age to encourage them to seek higher education.

The group consisted of students mostly attending Ignacio and Bayfield high schools and their parents. After each student had introduced him or herself, Councilman Steve Herrera implored them to prepare themselves to be the next generation of tribal leaders.

"We need you, as the next generation, to pick up the torch," he said.

"Be good and ensure that you carry on your family legacy."

Herrera said there's value in listening to the wisdom of parents and elders, even if the teenage instinct is to do otherwise.

"We know that you have to make those choices on your own," he said. "If I would've listened to my mom and dad then, I would've saved myself a lot of punishment."

Council Lady Marge Borst said obtaining education has allowed her a much wider range of experiences over her lifetime.

"When you have education, you can go anywhere in the world," she said. "You can go anywhere and be confident."
