Cats rule regionals, run away with first state game

By Joel Priest
Special to the Drum

The only reason Steve Swartzendruber heard the whistle was because he'd screamed for it. Amid deafening applause generated by consecutive enemy three-pointers, virtually none of his players likely heard it either – but they knew the unpleasant timeout was coming.

After Ignacio senior Jay Black quickly called for and received classmate Pedro Vigil's inbound pass in the right corner, Black easily buried an unguarded trey. And after Paonia came up empty on their next possession, Vigil dribbled down-court to the right wing and, with no hesitation, drained one himself.

"When I was on the bench, I was just going to keep encouraging my team," said Vigil of three first-half fouls that forced him to miss nearly all the second quarter. "And when I came back out, I was going to make sure I put in just like the rest of them did for me."

Black said it was "exhilarating." "As soon as you hit it, all you hear is 'Aaaaaahhhh!' And all that adrenaline hits you, and you're like 'Yes! We're going, we're going!'" he said.

One fist pump had been followed by another, the roof of the DemonDome had somehow contained the crowd's explosion, and the Eagles' skipper must have sensed his final chance had arrived to disrupt the Bobcats' momentum in the March 5 Class 2A-Region III championship.

Behind strong shooting by his own guards, Adrian Penny and Kacey Kropp, PHS – coming off a 61-60 overtime win over Mosca-based Sangre de Cristo the night before – fought well enough to weather 11 Vigil points in the first quarter, a combined 11 from posts Ryan Brooks and Shane Richmond in the second, and had trailed by only a 30-22 deficit at halftime.

But the two Bobcat bombs he'd just seen had stretched Ignacio's lead to 19, 51-32, with only about two minutes left in the third quarter. And as it ended, he and his flock learned what practically every IHS opponent has learned in the last three seasons: 19 points translates to "Game over."

"I thought we came out a little slow, but we picked it up in the second half – came out pretty strong in the third quarter and did well on defense," said Richmond, who led the Cats with 20 points in the previous day's 59-29 blowout of Crowley County (Ordway). "That's what we need to do; doesn't matter if you score or not, because if you play good defense they're not going to score."

Sixth man Deion Hudson kept the 24-minute mark's margin 18 points wide, 59-41. First came a triple with 0:33 left, extinguishing the mini-rally Swartzendruber's pause helped cause, then, after an Eagle basket, the Cats raced back down with time for one last dynamite shot.

Taking a feed on the left wing from Brooks, Hudson let fly from near the sideline over a defender, and the celebration the swish triggered could have made fans forget eight minutes were yet to be played.

"It felt like an NBA three," he said of his buzzer-beater. "Felt kind of off, felt flat, but as soon as I felt it go off my fingers I knew it was going in. The first one I hit – I already knew it was going in."

And at that point it was evident the Bobcats were going on to Pueblo for a third straight season, with a third consecutive Region III winners' plaque from Durango for the trophy case.

Vigil split two Eagles with an incredible behind-the-head, no-look pass to Brooks for a no-brainer bucket beginning the team's final frame of the season in southwestern Colorado (they'd won the previous weekend's district tournament at Montezuma-Cortez).

Using a screen set by Ryan Brooks (3), Ignacio's Deion Hudson (1) accelerates to the baseline against Paonia during the March 5 2A-Region III championship game in Durango. Hudson scored eight points, six on two crippling three-pointers, as IHS erased the Eagles from the postseason, 76-46.

Education depts. in talks over Tri-Ute youth conference

By Ace Stryker
The Southern Ute Drum

Education leaders from the three Ute tribes met in Ignacio March 4 to discuss the possibility of a Tri-Ute youth conference.

The conference would allow Ute tribal members between the sixth and 12th grades a social setting to have fun and learn about culture and leadership through workshops, panels and various activities. Details about where and when the conference might take place haven't been set, but some at the meeting said southwest Colorado presents some promising options, including the new Multi-purpose Building at Ute Park and Fort Lewis College.

"I would see this leadership conference as something that would go before the Tri-Ute Games," said Jennifer Bartlett, chief professional officer of the Boys & Girls Club of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe, adding that it could help establish a "baseline of camaraderie" before the games.

While offering potential as a tie-in to the games, a conference would also allow less athletic tribal members an opportunity to make friends and demonstrate their talents, said Carrie Vogel, early elementary tutor with the Southern Ute Education Department.

"We need to get the math and science kids involved," she said.

La Titia Taylor, director of the Education Department, said vendors could be included at conferences to give youth access to college representatives and role models like law enforcement officers. Talk included the potential for workshops on everything from the Ute language to drug and alcohol abuse prevention.

Afrem Wall, K-12 student services director for the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe, suggested friendly competitions like a knowledge bowl or talent show could attract students who other-

Casino named Ignacio chamber's 'member of year'

By Ace Stryker
The Southern Ute Drum

The Ignacio Chamber of Commerce on March 2 named the Sky Ute Casino Resort its member of the year for continued support of the chamber's activities, including monthly meetings and Ignacio Bike Week.

Acting General Manager Madilenia Chavarillo and Marketing Director Ben Fernandez accepted the award from chamber President Emily Meisner. The casino won the top prize over about 70 other member businesses.

"It's an honor that they recognize us as an important business member of the chamber," Fernandez said. "We always want to do as much as we can to support the chamber."

Fernandez said the relationship between the chamber and the casino, which hosts the chamber's monthly meetings in one of its conference rooms, has historically been "very close."

"We look forward to doing a lot more ... as they grow and as we grow," he said.

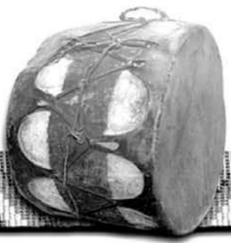

Meisner said Sky Ute has shown support for virtually all of the chamber's activities over the years. During a discussion of which business deserved the award most at the chamber board's annual meeting, the casino emerged a clear winner, she said.

"They are a team player in the biggest way," she said. "This is a long-coming, well-deserved award."

Free bison meat available to tribal members

The Southern Ute Indian Tribe's Division of Wildlife Resource Management maintains a small herd of bison for the Tribe's ceremonial, cultural and dietary needs. As a service to the tribal membership, the division makes available bison meat to enrolled Southern Ute tribal members free of charge. Tribal bison are grass-fed at low herd density and are free of artificial hormones and other synthetic chemicals. Meat is processed and packaged using local processors and is available as hamburger, steaks, roasts, stew meat and other specialty cuts. Bison meat is naturally low in cholesterol and an excellent, healthy alternative to beef. If you are an enrolled Southern Ute tribal member interested in obtaining bison meat for personal use, call the Division of Wildlife at 970-563-0130. Quantities and cuts of meat available may be limited.

Basic outdoor skills acquired in a hunter education course can be invaluable during any outdoor activities. For example, survival basics can help you prepare for and deal with emergencies. And wildlife management lessons provide insight into how and why wildlife agencies manage the resource, particularly by using hunting as a management tool.

Native documentary gets special screening in Ignacio

By Ace Stryker
 The Southern Ute Drum

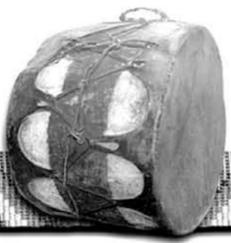

The Durango Independent Film Festival made a detour into Ignacio March 3 for a special screening of "A Good Day to Die," a documentary about Native American activist Dennis Banks. Banks, cofounder of the American Indian Movement, was present in person at the Multi-purpose Building at Ute Park to answer questions from Southern Ute tribal members after the screening. Also present were David Mueller and Lynn Salt, who together produced and directed the film.

restore the traditions and rights of Native Americans. The organization coordinated a series of high-profile events in the 1970s, including the "Trail of Broken Treaties" in 1972 that led a caravan of activists from the West Coast to Washington, D.C., culminating in the occupation of the Bureau of Indian Affairs offices. The movement also staged the occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D., in 1973. Members held the town - made famous as the scene of a massacre of Native Americans nearly a century earlier - for 71 days in an effort to bring light to decades of grievances.

"A Good Day to Die" follows Banks's story from boarding through military service and his involvement with AIM. It also showed in Durango on March 6.

The Kidney Corner:

Consider lifestyle changes to control blood pressure

By Dr. Mark Saddler
Durango Nephrology Associates

In the last edition of the Kidney Corner, we discussed the importance of controlling blood pressure. Such control can very effectively prevent the complications of high blood pressure including stroke, blindness, heart disease and kidney failure.

Although medications are often needed to control high blood pressure, it is important to start with non-medicine approaches to controlling blood pressure. We call these "therapeutic lifestyle changes," and they can be extremely effective for blood pressure control.

Although it can be difficult to maintain a change in one's lifestyle, these efforts usually don't cost anything and don't have any side effects so they are in many ways better than medications.

Exercise is one effective lifestyle modification which has been shown to markedly improve blood pressure. I am often asked which exercise is the best for my patients. There have been many studies done on this subject, and in general, they have shown that it doesn't matter what form of exercise is done; the benefits to the cardiovascular system are about the same.

A recent study even showed that it doesn't matter whether exercise is "aerobic" (endurance type exercise like running, biking or swimming) or "anaerobic" (strengthening type exercise like weight lifting); again, the benefit to the cardiovascular system is about the same.

For people who have problems with joints or muscles, some types of exercise that put less strain on the joints, such as stationary biking or swimming, can be more enjoyable. Another consideration regarding choice of exercise is that "weight bearing exercise" (walking or running) can be more beneficial for prevention of osteoporosis by improving calcium deposition in bones.

A long-term commitment to an exercise program is essential for it to be effective. So my usual answer to the question, "Which type of exercise is best for me?" is to ask the patient "What kind of exercise do you like doing best?" I feel that the exercise a person enjoys the most is the one they will stick with the best. Thirty minutes five times per week is a reasonable goal for exercise.

Weight loss is another effective way to reduce blood pressure. Exercise and calorie restriction are the most beneficial ways to achieve this. Even loss of a modest amount of weight can be extremely beneficial in blood pressure control.

I don't recommend high-protein diets for weight control. Although they can result in rapid weight loss, they are often associated with rapid return of the weight, and their safety is not well established.

Long term weight loss is better achieved by balanced calorie restriction. In this context, "balanced" means keeping an appropriate balance of protein, carbohydrates and even some healthful fats to maintain a diet high in nutritional value.

Finally, no discussion of therapeutic lifestyle changes would be complete without mentioning the importance of sodium (salt) restriction. This can have a significant effect in reducing blood pressure, whether patients are on blood pressure-lowering medications or not.

TEN YEARS ONE BILLION ACTS OF PEACE

Friday night Overdrive returns

By Jennifer Bartlett
Boys & Girls Club of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe

Five community organizations came together in fall 2010 to discuss bringing back a popular teen program, Friday Night Overdrive.

Beginning on Jan. 28, the SunUte Community Center opened its doors to junior high- and high school-aged teens from 9 p.m. to midnight. Staff members from the Southern Ute Police Department, the Boys & Girls Club of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe, SunUte Community Center, and Southern Ute Community Action Programs' Youth Services provided a variety of activities.

Healthy Lifestyle La Plata and Southern Ute Education also provided support. The collaboration of organizations has allowed the event to grow and become sustainable for the Southern Ute Indian Tribe's current and future teens.

Before the live DJ turned the sound on to begin the event, a family dinner – coordinated in partnership with the Together Raising Awareness for Indian Life Program – provided a healthy meal for community members of all ages. The dinner was followed by other activities for teens at SunUte until Overdrive began.

A group of teens kicked off Overdrive on Jan. 28, with a dash starting Dodgeball Madness. The third Overdrive is scheduled for March 25, and it will continue the last Friday of every month.

On Feb. 25, 30 youth attended the second Friday Night Overdrive of the year. The event included a dodge-ball tournament, flag football, indoor tennis, active video games, indoor soccer, rock climbing, and a lounge area.

Complimentary food was served to participants as well.

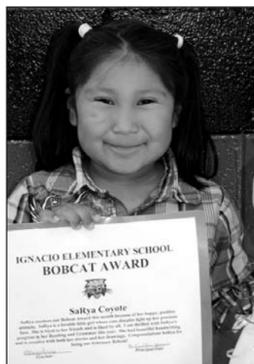

Friday Night Overdrive is free and requests that participants enter the event only once after 9 p.m. Participants are also offered a free ride home after the event, within 10 miles of SunUte, with a completed waiver. Waivers can be picked up at Ignacio schools, SunUte, or SUCAP's Teen Center.

The next Friday Night Overdrive will be March 25, and the event will continue the last Friday of every month.

Professional opportunity for the educators & service providers "out yonder"

Sparse populations. Small-town culture. Youth outmigration. Disproportionate costs. For adult instructors in rural Colorado the refrains are all too familiar, though they may sound strange to outsiders.

Teaching for 21st-century ruralites; sophistication that balances traditionalism

What makes our work so different here? How is the learning curve so distinct, and the adaptations unique? When local values meet global norms, what's the future? Helping adults achieve new vitality and skills in the "outback" often challenges our most basic assumptions.

Family literacy, sustainable income, college access, better lives, healthier communities

Living here can mean a lot of needs, and few enough resources; join us to explore ideas, aspirations, and expertise in the now critical debate over training America's unemployed and underprepared.

And after Vigil's last three, putting Ignacio up 68-44 with 3:48 remaining, Swartzendruber helped give IHS boss Chris Valdez time to plan his seniors' curtain calls with a timeout. Brooks exited with 17 points, Vigil sat with 21, Black departed with his three, Hudson totaled eight. Low-post backup Colton Davis played to the final whistle, hitting two free throws and scoring once inside for his four points.

Paul Tahlo netted Ignacio's seven other points, after also booking seven against the Chargers, and hit a tide-turning three early in the Bobcats' 29-point third quarter. Penny had just rattled in one of his four threes, bringing Paonia back to 34-29, but Tahlo answered immediately from distance.

Paonia had taken their last lead at 20-19 on reserve Daniel Ford's two free throws - incidentally, the game's first attempts (of which the teams totaled only 13) - with 5:14 left before halftime.

"We knew they were going to come out and give us a good game. They weren't just going to lay down for us," Brooks said. "So we came tough and ready to play, let them breathe a little in the first half, and Coach told us in the second to clamp down and don't let them get anything. ... We did that, started hitting our threes, and that started opening up the inside game."

Hudson said the offense started out too fast.

"We had to slow it down," he said. "And after we slowed it down, everybody started getting into the game."

Penny led the Eagles (16-8) with 16 points, Kropp scored 11, and forward Anthony Roeber, who scored the game's first bas-Ignacio's Shane Richmond (23) whirls around Paonia's Daniel Ford (25) to score two of his 16 points in the 2A-Region III championship game March 5 in Durango. Penalizing teams all season for over-defending teammate Ryan Brooks, Richmond also scored 20 the day before against Crowley County. CC fell 59-29, and PHS fell 76-46.

"It's crazy. Feels so good," said Brooks of the 76-46 triumph. "Just working hard and knowing that work pays off with all these championships or whatever. We just want to ... make it a step further."

Vigil said he didn't want it to be the last game he'd ever play.

"I came out like it was my last ... and just wanted to do it for my coach," he said. "He worked all year for us - it was one of our main goals - and I just wanted to get there for the whole team."

Off to the double-elimination Great Eight phase inside CSU-Pueblo's Massari Arena, Ignacio (21-2) received the No. 2 seed behind only undefeated Yuma (23-0). In March 10's opening quarterfinals, the Cats overcame Wiggins (14-10), who stunned Limon in the Region VIII finale, by a final score of 56-31. Ignacio advanced to face either No. 3 Lutheran (20-4) or No. 6 Peyton (19-5) in the March 11 semifinals at 4 p.m.

Also in are No. 8 Hoehne (12-11), No. 4 Denver Christian (20-3), and No. 5 Lutheran-Parker (20-4).

"Very special. Feels good going back to Pueblo," Hudson said. "I was there once, now I'm going back, and I'm going to play my hardest when I get up there, help the team out the best I can."

Black said Ignacio's senior-driven success has made for an amazing ride.

"Especially with Chunk [Brooks] and Pedro - Chunk's a phenomenal post player, Pedro can just shoot - and Deion, nobody can stay with him. Amazing to watch them play," he said.

Add Paonia, Crowley County and Wiggins to the long list of witnesses who'd have to agree.

Lady Cats exit in regional semis

By Joel Priest
Special to the Drum

After an electric start and energized first quarter, it was as if someone just pulled the plug.

And even when the socket was in sight and the prongs were re-inserted, there was no current flowing through the circuit for the Lady Bobcats March 4 in Grand Junction.

Facing Lutheran (Parker, Colo.) in one semifinal of the 2A-Region V Tournament, Ignacio managed just eight baskets - including a combined two in the second/third quarters - and succumbed, 43-27, inside Mesa State College's Brownson Arena.

"When we played with them in the first two or three minutes, we had a feeling of confidence," said head coach Brice Searles. "But from there it was a matter of us being more efficient offensively. ... We became stagnant, and it was pretty easy for them to take over from there."

Forward Mariah Vigil began the game with a workman's three-point play, and the lefty then dropped in another hoop to put IHS ahead 5-0 only 1:10 into the contest. Rose Mirabal then hit two free throws nine seconds later to show the Lady Lions that the southwesterners meant business.

"We knew what we had to do; we went last year so we knew what it was like," Michelle Simmons said. "We started off strong ... and for a team of seniors [at Lutheran], we could have beat them easily."

Fortunate to have experience of six seniors and two juniors on its roster, Ignacio quickly learned that only two would actually pose a threat. And with Mirabal holding Kelsey Wall almost completely in check up front, and Simmons slowing Kelsey Hizer in the backcourt, the Lady Cats gave themselves plenty of chances to build off their defensive results.

But suddenly very few were converted, or even attempted at all. Lutheran ended the first quarter on an 11-0 run to go ahead by four, before Pam Cotton nailed two free throws and Simmons drove hard for a tying layup early in the second quarter.

But again, that was all for IHS. The Lady Lions went into halftime on a 13-1 tear, helped by seven Hizer points, and a Wall three-ball that put LHS up 14-11. The stanza couldn't have ended any better for Lutheran: unguarded weakside baskets by Hizer and junior Lexi Radic in the final 60 seconds.

With Mirabal picking up her third foul with 4:30 left in the third, Wall finally had some leeway to operate, and singlehandedly won the frame 8-6, after also getting Vigil (seven points) to commit her third with 1:31 left. A late Simmons basket gave the Lady Cats some hope, but the deficit still stood 32-18.

Stretching their offense to the limits of the court allowed LHS to effectively waste time while waiting for either Hizer (15 points) or Wall (18 points) to make only the perfect cut to the basket for a shot. However, they also found themselves reverting back to their first-quarter form, in which IHS assistant coach Justa Whitt caught three Lady Lion passes.

And the Lady Cats (10-11 overall) slowly re-started their engine; guard Cloe Seibel hit a 17-footer to cut Lutheran's lead to just 35-26 with 3:05 left. But Wall swished a three from the right corner with 2:21 left, senior Alex Winters scored her only basket, and Wall sank another triple for a 43-27 lead.

That would hold for the final 52 seconds, after Simmons fouled out with an outstanding line by her name: seven points, six blocked shots, four steals, and three rebounds. Mirabal scored the team's final point on a free throw, giving her a team-high nine points (5-6 FT) to go with her four steals.

"Both girls played really well, were really focused on what they needed to do," Searles said. "I didn't realize [Wall] had that much range, and on those couple open looks I don't think it was so much our defense - it was just the open looks that gave her the opportunity to shoot. ... Their size didn't hurt us that bad, and I thought we did a good job on the boards. ... For the most part, it was a great effort."

Mirabal said the Lady Cats had trouble getting much going on the offensive end.

"We weren't running what we were supposed to," she said, "and unfortunately we couldn't get it." Searles said offensive efficiency is a target for improvement.

"There's times in games where we don't get the individual ability to score - either a drive or a jump shot - and as a group I think we just need to focus more on our offensive efficiency with each player," Searles noted. "And we'll be fine; everything else is set."

At the end of her IHS career, Mirabal said she was sad to go.

"Our basketball program is turning around, and it sucks that I'm at the end of it," said Mirabal who, along with fellow seniors Katelyn Siviers and Bonnie Lucero, saw the season to its end. "But they're going to keep progressing, and it's good to see that people are that interested in the girls' program."

Improving to 20-3, LHS advanced to this weekend's 'Great Eight' by low-balling Sargent 35-29.

Center of Southwest Studies to present 'The Real Savages'

*Media release
Fort Lewis College*

The Center of Southwest Studies at Fort Lewis College will open a new exhibit on March 18, "The Real Savages," that presents a viewpoint of how propaganda and American stereotypes have influenced and impacted Native American cultures and identities.

Juxtaposing stereotypical visual images with historical facts, this exhibit explores the experience of culture assimilation, identity and knowledge.

member of the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe. The project was inspired after a summer semester in Germany studying propaganda in art.

Art professor Paul Booth facilitated both the summer semester and Lansing's project. What resulted from dedicated research and creativity was a student exhibition first displayed in the Fort Lewis College Art Department.

"My ideas and motives have come from a variety of sources and influences within my own life and culture," Lansing said. "I am pleased to see that the overall final product has exceeded by far what I expected when I first started this project."

Impressed, the Center of Southwest Studies staff invited the exhibit its gallery space, in part to augment the story of Indian boarding schools, which is touched upon in the new exhibit "Frontier Blues: The Legacy of Fort Lewis College," also opening March 18 as a part of the college's centennial celebration.

An opening reception for both exhibits will take place Friday, March 18, from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Center of Southwest Studies Gallery on the campus of Fort Lewis College. The event is free and open to the public, with light refreshments provided.

Academy sells goods for hospital

The Southern Ute Indian Montessori Academy once again filled the Hall of Warriors in the Leonard C. Burch Tribal Administration Building with baked goods and craft items March 4 during the Treasure & Bake Sale, which raised $850 for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. Academy students Dustin Sanchez and Hunter Frost volunteered to price items and handle money during the sale. Tribal elders Elaine Newton and Dona Frost take a few minutes to look over the goodies on display.

Meet your Wildlife Advisory Board

San Juan Basin Energy Connect

Two Additional Meetings Scheduled for

PROJECT OVERVIEW

Tri-State Generation and Transmission Association (Tri-State) is proposing to construct a 230-kilovolt (kV) transmission line from the Farmington area in northwest New Mexico to Ignacio, Colorado. This line and supporting electrical facilities are needed to provide the power delivery infrastructure for the San Juan Basin that will relieve transmission constraints, serve new loads and offer economic development through renewable energy opportunities.

PROJECT NEED

Increasing electric load growth in the San Juan Basin region of Colorado and New Mexico, in commercial, residential and industrial sectors, has put a strain on the existing electrical system. While the existing generation resources throughout the region are adequate to meet load growth, additional transmission is required to ensure that power can be delivered reliably. An added benefit of this new transmission line will be that new renewable energy developments could more easily interconnect to the power grid.

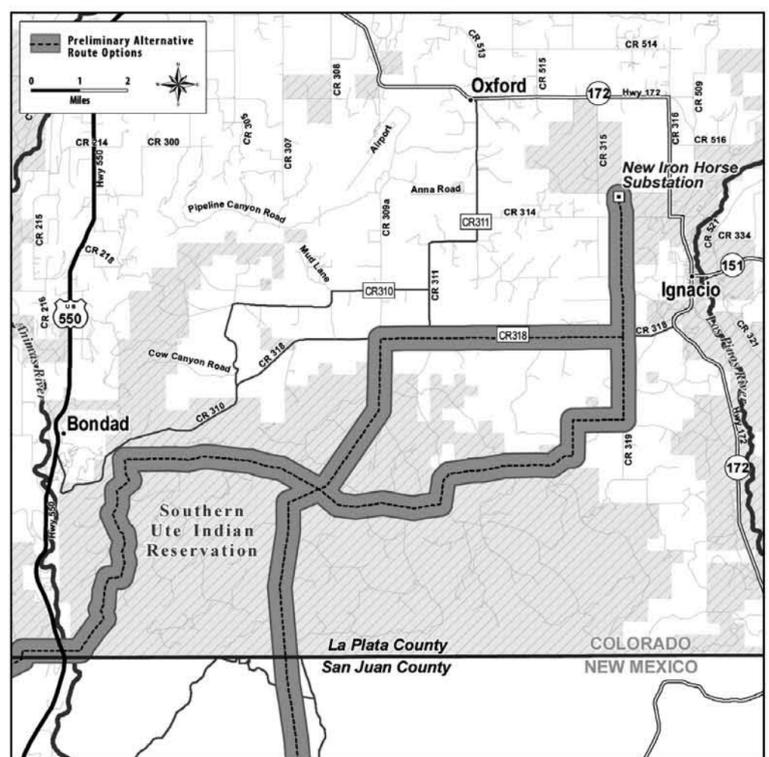

Tri-State, its member co-op La Plata Electric Association, and other regional utilities have been making improvements and additions to the electric system over the years to maintain reliability. While improvements to the local system have helped, the need to import more power into the region to meet the needs of growing communities has resulted in the proposal of this 230-kV transmission line.

Most of the infrastructure in the region was built in the 1950s and, over the years, aging equipment has been replaced and upgraded. Numerous investments have been made at substations throughout the region to improve reliability by building in redundant systems, installing voltage support mechanisms and increasing capacity. But still the transmission path in the region is constrained and Tri-State must ensure that it meets the needs of its member systems, as well as comply with numerous federal mandatory reliability standards.

Purpose, Need and Benefits

The purpose and need for the project is to relieve transmission constraints, improve the power delivery infrastructure, and serve growing and new electric loads. The proposed project would also:

- improve electric reliability
- increase the load-serving capabilities for residential, small business and industrial electric consumers (including oil and gas developers)
- provide a pathway for potential renewable energy development

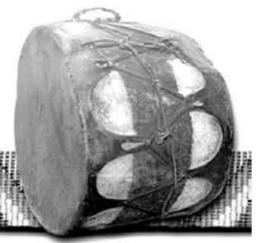

FEDERAL REVIEW PROCESS

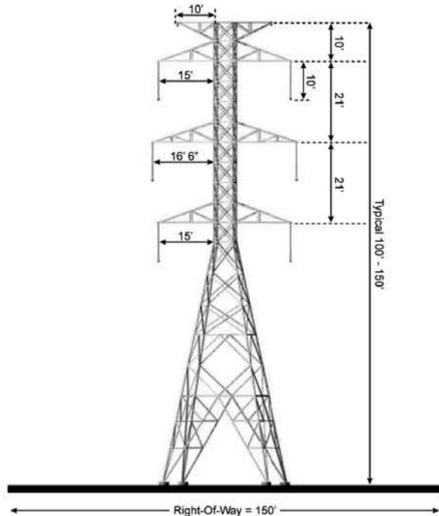

Tri-State is requesting right-of-way grants from the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) as well as financial assistance from the Rural Utilities Service (RUS) for their San Juan Basin Energy Connect Project. The Western Area Power Administration (Western) also is a cooperating agency.

Prior to making a decision about whether to approve funding requests or to grant rights-of-way for the proposed project, federal agencies including the BLM, BIA, RUS and Western are required to conduct environmental review under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) in accordance with federal agency policies and procedures.

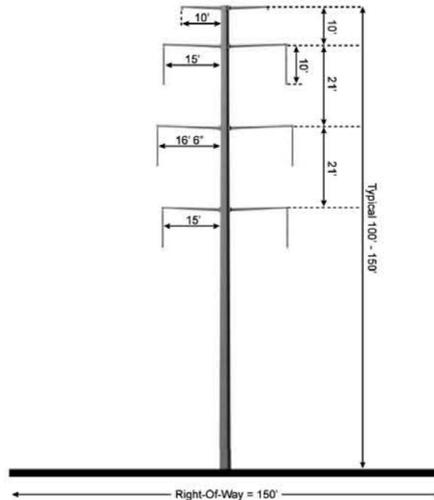

Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) requires federal agencies to consider the effects of their undertakings on historic properties and affords the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation a reasonable opportunity to comment. Section 7 requires federal agencies to evaluate impacts to species that are listed under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) and consult with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The BLM is the lead federal agency for NEPA, NHPA, Section 106 and ESA Section 7 review and compliance. The BIA, RUS, Western and the Southern Ute Indian Tribe are cooperating in these processes. Additional agencies may coordinate throughout the life of the project.

TRANSMISSION SYSTEM

Transmission lines carry large amounts of electricity at high voltages across long distances and are considered bulk power delivery systems. Once the electricity has been generated at a power facility, it is carried to a substation by a transmission line and then to residential and business consumers via distribution power lines.

Voltages on a transmission line typically range from 115 to 500 kV. Distribution lines carry the energy at lower voltages (12.5 to 34.5 kV) until it reaches a small transformer that converts it to a voltage of 110 and 220 volts, suitable for consumer use.

DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION

Tri-State is proposing to use a combination of steel lattice structures, steel mono-poles and wood H-frame structures. The choice of structure type would be dependent on location and design conditions (e.g., mountainous vs. flat terrain, double- vs. single-circuit construction). The transmission line would use low-corona hardware to minimize audible noise. Structures typically range between 100 and 150 feet tall. Some structures, particularly those crossing over lower voltage transmission lines, may need to be taller than 150 feet.

Tri-State would hire a contractor to construct the transmission lines. Construction is expected to take approximately 18 to 24 months and would be completed in several phases: access development, staging structures, foundation construction, framing and erecting the structures, stringing conductor and reclamation. Several work phases may be in progress simultaneously at different locations along the route.

Gulf fishing ruined? Don't believe the press

By Don Oliver
Special to the Drum

Writing "Flies and Lies" frequently requires me to travel to verify information from my sources.

So after the Deepwater Horizon explosion that covered the Gulf of Mexico with millions of gallons of oil tragically killed 11 people on the rig, and did huge amounts of damage to both businesses and the ecology of the area, I felt a need to return to southeast Louisiana. I wanted to see for myself just how bad the fly-fishing business had become.

As Gomer Pyle used to say, "Surprise, surprise, surprise."

I discovered the lodge where we were staying, Woodlands Plantation, was doing great; the Louisiana food, as was to be expected, was excellent; and the red fishing was as good or better than before the tragedy. From a visual inspection of the areas I fished, there appeared to be very little damage from oil to the marshes. (I'll use another column to talk about the disappearance of the marshes.)

The group I was with fly-fished for two days. Our guides, Alec and Rich – same as last year – netted for us two 28 pound reds and one 29 pound red, plus numerous reds in the 14-pound range, drums that took two hands to boat, and two sheep-head. And this was in weather conditions less than pleasant.

While fishing I made a comment that the fly-fishing seemed to have bounced back since the spill. That statement brought a quick response from Rich, my guide.

"The fish never left; only the fly-fisherman who believed everything the government and press said," he said.

That's the sanitized version. Rich, being a former Marine, sometimes speaks in terms not printable for the sensitive or faint of heart.

"Oil did make it into the marshes, but nothing here like was shown on television from other areas," Rich went on to say. He then pointed out a small island, maybe 15 feet across, that was obviously struggling to survive.

"In this area, that is the only spot dying," he said.

Alec and Rich both said their biggest concern is what all the chemicals used to disperse the oil will do. No one has that answer; only time will tell.

As for fly-fishing, maybe the total lack of pressure from last summer is helping to make this a banner year to fly-fish for big reds. If you go – and you should – take the proper equipment. I suggest an 8 or 9-weight rod. Your guide will provide leaders and flies.

I used a large purple crab pattern both days, and it worked great. When you're casting and you hear "set," strip set your fly, clear the line, get on the reel, and keep your knuckles away from the reel handle.

Remember, your leader will be 30-pound test, so a high setting on the drag works great. Also, fight that big fish from the butt section of your rod, not the tip. If you're not sure how to do that, your guide will be happy to offer some instruction. Take it; it's what they're good at.

You know, what happened with the Horizon was horrific and will most likely have effects on the Gulf for years to come. I don't want to cast aspersions at any one group as to whose fault it was; there is plenty of blame to go around.

However, the fact remains that to enjoy the pleasure of red fishing in Louisiana, it will take oil and gas to get us there, power the boats, heat the guest lodges, and warm the stoves and ovens for that great Louisiana food.

I can only hope that from this tragedy all of us will finally learn how to manage our natural resources and the way we tap into them.

Important information about the $3.4 billion Indian Trust Settlement

For current or former IIM account holders, Owners of land held in trust or restricted status, or their heirs

There is a proposed Settlement in Cobell v. Salazar, a class action lawsuit about individual Indian land held in trust by the federal government. This notice is just a summary. For details, call the toll-free number or visit the website listed below.

The lawsuit claims that the federal government violated its duties by (a) mismanaging trust funds/assets, (b) improperly accounting for those funds, and (c) mismanaging trust land/assets. The trust funds include money collected from farming and grazing leases, timber sales, mining, and oil and gas production from land owned by American Indians/Alaska Natives.

If you are included in the Settlement, your rights will be affected. To object to the Settlement, to comment on it, or to exclude yourself, you should get a detailed notice at www.IndianTrust.com or by calling 1-800-961-6109.

Can I get money?

There are two groups or "Classes" in the Settlement eligible for payment. Each Class includes individual IIM account holders or owners of land held in trust or restricted status who were alive on September 30, 2009.

Historical Accounting Class Members

- Had an open individual Indian Money account ("IIM") anytime between October 25, 1994 and September 30, 2009, and
- The account had at least one cash transaction.
- Includes estates of account holders who died as of September 30, 2009, if the IIM account was still open on that date.

Trust Administration Class Members

- Had an IIM account recorded in currently available data in federal government systems any time from approximately 1985 to September 30, 2009, or
- Owned trust land or land in restricted status as of September 30, 2009.
- Includes estates of landowners who died as of September 30, 2009 where the trust interests were in probate as of that date. This means you have asked a court to transfer ownership of the deceased landowner's property.

An individual may be included in one or both Classes.

What does the Settlement provide?

- A $1.5 billion fund to pay those included in the Classes.
- A $1.9 billion fund to buy small interests in trust or restricted land owned by many people.
- Up to $60 million to fund scholarships to improve access to higher education for Indian youth.
- A government commitment to reform the Indian trust management and accounting system.

How much can I get?

- Historical Accounting Class Members will each get $1,000.
- Trust Administration Class Members will get at least $500.
- If you own a small parcel of land with many other people, the federal government may ask you to sell it. You will be offered fair market value. If you sell your land it will be returned to tribal control.

If you believe you are a member of either Class and are not receiving IIM account statements, you will need to call the toll-free number or visit the website to register.

What are my other rights?

- If you wish to keep your right to sue the federal government about the claims in this Settlement, you must exclude yourself by April 20, 2011.
- If you stay in the Settlement you can object to or comment on it by April 20, 2011. The detailed notice explains how to exclude yourself or object/comment.

The U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia will hold a hearing on June 20, 2011, to consider whether to approve the Settlement. It will also consider a request for attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses in the amount of $99.9 million. However, Class Counsel has fee agreements that would pay them 14.75% of the funds created for the Classes, which could result in an award of $223 million. The Court may award more or less than these amounts based on controlling law. If approved, these payments and related costs will come out of the Settlement funds available for payment to Class Members.

If you wish, you or your own lawyer may ask to appear and speak at the hearing at your own cost. For more information, call or go to the website shown below or write to Indian Trust Settlement, P.O. Box 9577, Dublin, OH 43017-4877.
