Tri-Ute Council favors youth conference idea

Event would feature cultural workshops, college counseling, activities

By Ace Stryker
The Southern Ute Drum

Leaders of the three Ute tribes gave effusive praise April 27 to a proposal for a Tri-Ute Youth Leadership Conference, which would take place Aug. 8 - 11 at Fort Lewis College in Durango.

The proposed conference would feature educational workshops and activities such as a talent show, basketball tournament and knowledge bowl. It would be open to children in the sixth through 12th grades. The education leaders involved in planning the conference and proposing it to the council included La Titia Taylor from the Southern Ute Indian Tribe, Afrem Wall from the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe and Antonio Arce from the Northern Ute Tribe.

Southern Ute Chairwoman Pearl E. Casias said the workshops represent a great opportunity for youth to learn about everything from culture and spirituality to violence prevention and drug and alcohol use.

"This is a really fantastic thing that we're putting together that we're working toward," said

Southern Ute Chairwoman Pearl E. Casias. "It's very important that children learn about the culture, and along with that comes the spirituality. ... You marry that with education, and then our children can be proud of who they are, where they came from. We can't learn that in public school."

The discussion took place during the council's quarterly meeting, this time hosted at the Hilton Garden Inn Denver Cherry Creek.

Conference plans also call for career and college counseling, forums and sexual awareness training. Organizers have discussed offering class credit to attendees and incentives for students who bring their academic transcripts to the conference.

Ute Mountain Ute Chairman Gary Hayes said placing the conference at Fort Lewis will allow young tribal members to experience the college atmosphere, hopefully inspiring them to consider higher education after graduation.

"What we're trying to do is open their eyes and help them make better decisions in their lives. This is a way to do it," he said. "I wish I had this when I was growing up. ... If we're serious about education, if we're serious about taking care of our youth, if we're serious about Tri-Ute coming together ... we need to start something for our youth."

The organizers also presented a fiscal note to the council, which, based on an estimated 255 attendees including chaperones, projects a total cost of $48,480.75, or $160.12 per person. If the cost were split into equal thirds, which Taylor said is the preferred approach, each tribe would be responsible for $13,610.25.

"I know that might sound like a lot, but per person, I think that's pretty reasonable," Taylor said. "I thought Fort Lewis gave us a pretty good deal."

Hayes called the cost "money well spent."

"As far as return on investment, you're not going to see it on the books," he said. "You'll see it in our people, in the future, 20 years from now."

Frances Poowegup, vice chairwoman of the Northern Ute Tribe, also voiced her support.

"I applaud you for coming forward with this workshop concept," she told the organizers. "I think this is one of the most positive things that we have done for our children."

The proposal now goes back to the individual tribal councils for consideration.

Many nations at 'Gathering'

Head dancers make their way into the arena, bringing out the Eagle Staff, as the Gathering of Nations Powwow returns to the University of New Mexico's "Pit" for the 28th annual event from April 28 - 30 in Albuquerque. The Gathering of Nations attracts tens of thousands of participants and spectators from around the world, including members from more than 500 tribes in the United States and Canada. This cultural event showcases art, dance, music and the highly anticipated crowning of Miss Indian World. See page 8 for full photo coverage.

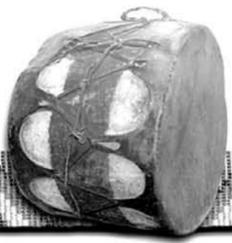

'Here comes Peter Cottontail'

"Hopping down the bunny trail, hippity-hoppity, Easter's on its way." Bringing Easter to Ignacio, the Easter Bunny didn't actually hop into town — he caught a ride with the Los Pinos Fire Department on April 23 to the SunUte Community Center's multipurpose fields. The Southern Ute Police Department hosted its annual Easter egg hunt on a brisk-yet-sunny Saturday. Hundreds of kids fetched the 4,000 eggs, filling their Easter baskets to capacity. Some were even lucky or brave enough to pose with Mr. Cottontail, as these were.

Attention Tribal Hunters: Annual Brunot Area Rare Game Permitting Lottery

Included with Brunot Area hunting available to Southern Ute Tribal hunters is the opportunity to pursue rare big game, including Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep, moose, and mountain goat. Due to the rarity of these animals within the Brunot Area, only a limited number of permits will be available each year through an application and random draw process administered by the Southern Ute Wildlife Division. Tribal hunters may apply to receive a permit during the month of May only, and drawings and notifications will be made in June.

THE WINDOW FOR SUBMITTING A 2011 RARE GAME PERMIT APPLICATION IS: MONDAY, MAY 2 through TUESDAY, MAY 31

Applications must be signed by the applicant and received by hand-delivery or postmarked during the application window. Please note that if you apply but are not drawn for a permit in a given year, you will receive a "bonus point" toward drawings for that hunt type in the future. The more bonus points you accrue, the better your chances are at being drawn. Applications are available free-of-charge to enrolled Southern Ute Tribal Members only. Applications must be obtained and submitted through the Southern Ute Wildlife Division at P.O. Box 737, Ignacio CO 81137. For more information, contact the Division at (970) 563-0130.

The Kidney Corner: Treatment of chronic kidney disease

By Dr. Mark Saddler
Durango Nephrology Associates

In recent articles in the Kidney Corner, we have been discussing chronic kidney disease, a condition in which the ability of the kidney to excrete waste products is impaired. How can this problem be treated?

Many forms of chronic kidney disease can be effectively controlled so that they do not become a burden for the patients, even if they are not cured. Good control of the underlying disease can typically slow down the progression of chronic kidney disease rather than cure it. For example, kidney disease due to diabetes can be slowed down by good control of blood glucose (sugar) levels.

Some other causes of chronic kidney disease, on the other hand, can be directly treated and sometimes cured. Examples include glomerulonephritis (an inflammation of the kidneys, some forms of which are common in Native Americans), lupus and vasculitis, an inflammation of the small blood vessels.

Avoidance of toxins that could cause further damage to the kidneys is also important in patients with chronic kidney disease. The most common offenders in this regard are over-the-counter pain medications ("non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs"), including ibuprofen and naproxen.

Since these come with many different trade names, the best rule to follow is that the over-the-counter pain medications which are generally SAFE from the kidney point of view are acetaminophen (Tylenol) and aspirin. There are also many prescription medications which can cause problems with the kidneys, particularly in patients with underlying kidney disease.

Ask your doctor if you have any concerns about potential risk to your kidneys from your prescription medication.

Good control of blood pressure is also very important to preserve kidney function. In the next issue of the Kidney Corner, we will discuss some of the issues related to blood pressure control in chronic kidney disease. We will also discuss medications called ACE inhibitors and ARBs which have a very valuable effect preserving kidney function.

Patients with chronic kidney disease may also unfortunately develop various complications and these too may require treatment. This may include management of anemia (decreased red blood cells), bone disease, attention to nutrition, and so forth.

Attention to your general health is especially important if you have kidney disease. Keeping in shape with regular exercise is important for your cardiovascular system and bone health, and avoidance of being overweight is also vital. Eat a healthy diet which is not too high in fat and salt, and please don't smoke or overindulge in alcohol.

All these interventions are important to avoid further kidney damage and also to prevent complications which can be associated with the kidney disease. The personal effort required to stick to these therapeutic lifestyle interventions will be easily repaid by improved health in your future.

NFL Quarterback Sam Bradford urges Native American youth to get active

Media release
U.S. Department of Agriculture

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack welcomed St. Louis Rams quarterback Sam Bradford to the Agriculture Department and joined him in urging Native American youth to spend the summer pursuing healthy outdoor activities.

Bradford, an enrolled member of the Cherokee Nation, participated with over 30 Native American students at USDA's People's Garden in planting a Native American garden called The Roots of American Agriculture.

"Through programs like Fuel Up to Play 60 and Let's Move!, the Obama administration is helping get kids active in order to help them have a healthy future," Vilsack said. "Our partners at the NFL and across the country are key to engaging kids in an exciting way that teaches them that physical activity can be fun, while also important to their health."

Bradford and Vilsack noted that a recent study of 4-year-old children found that obesity is more than twice as common among American Indian/Alaska Native children as among white or Asian children. In 2002, nearly 15 percent of those receiving care from the United States Indian Health Service were estimated to have diabetes.

The USDA People's Garden Initiative promotes the establishment of school and community gardens to grow healthy food, people and communities across the country. Over 30

"Through programs like Fuel Up to Play 60 and Let's Move!, the Obama administration is helping get kids active in order to help them have a healthy future."

- Tom Vilsack,
U.S. Agriculture secretary

Native students helped plant the garden. Those participating included students representing Eastern and Western tribes, Southeast Alaska, and a class from a Native elementary school in Tuba City, Arizona. The garden showcases heirloom Native American crops and planting techniques and celebrates the tremendous contributions Native Americans have made to the foods we eat today.

Bradford and Vilsack were joined at USDA by Robin Schepper, executive director of First Lady Michelle Obama's Let's Move! campaign; Keith Moore, the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Indian Education director, and Janie Hipp, senior advisor to Secretary Vilsack with the USDA Office of Tribal Relations.

The First Lady's Let's Move! initiative, which aims to end childhood obesity, has also since joined in support of Fuel Up to Play 60 and USDA's HealthierUS Schools Challenge, which are both helping to combat this issue and provide access to nutrition information.

Fuel Up to Play 60 is an in-school nutrition and physical activity program launched by the National Dairy Council and the National Football League, with additional partnership support from USDA. The program encourages youth to consume nutrient-rich foods (low-fat and fat-free dairy, fruits, vegetables and whole grains) and achieve 60 minutes of physical activity every day.

Fuel Up to Play 60 is designed to engage and empower youth to take action for their own health by implementing long-term, positive changes for themselves and their schools.

On April 22, 2010, Bradford was selected by the St. Louis Rams as the first overall pick in the 2010 NFL Draft. He grew up in Oklahoma and spent his college career with the Oklahoma Sooners. In 2008, Bradford became the second sophomore to win a Heisman Trophy. In his first season in the NFL, Bradford won the NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year award after setting the record for most completions by a rookie in NFL history

Plays address dating violence

The anti-violence group "See It. Stop It. On Tribal Lands," in conjunction with Ignacio High School, sponsored an informative day called "Standing Together to Advocate Nonviolent Dating" on Monday, April 25 in the high school auditorium. Two separate plays, acted out by visiting educators, addressed how young adults are at risk for dating violence and highlighted early warning signs and preventative strategies. "The Yellow Dress" (left) is the monologue of a young girl telling her story about being in an abusive relationship, ending in tragedy; student volunteers, (top) Shailyn Olguin and Abriana Baker-Silva man an informational booth as part of the awareness program. The other play was titled "Remote Control."

Fishermen, pro golfers: kindred spirits

By Don Oliver
Special to the Drum

While checking my eye-lids for light leaks and listening to a golf tournament last Sunday it hit me, professional golfers and fly-fishermen are a lot alike. Well, except for million-dollar paydays and pods of beautiful women following the golfers around, our two sports have lots in common.

For instance, when one of the golfers came off the 18th green he had a reporter ask him an amazing question, and the pro had an amazing answer. The question went something like, "You just shot a 61 to break the course record, what are your thoughts?"

He answered along the lines of, "Well, a 61 is certainly a good score, and breaking the course record was lots of fun. However, I missed too many easy shots and putts to make me happy. I'm going to have to reevaluate my swing, grip, and equipment, before I tee off again. Hopefully, after I do that, the next 61 will mean more."

Somehow, I think this professional is missing something, like maybe a grip on reality. While that wasn't the exact question and answer, it was close to some I have heard.

By the same token I have heard some amazing statements another, similar to professional golfer I know of, I think you've lost touch with reality."

Herein lies the rub. Two people on top of their game, having few equals, have lost sight of why they participate in these sports. Yes, it is great to want to be the best you can be at whatever you do. No, it is not good to lose sight of what got you into the sport to begin with. I used to play golf, gave it up twice, then sold my clubs. Just couldn't get to the fun part. But I have for fly-fishing.

So, with spring and summer now here, I offer the following advice for fly-fishermen everywhere to stay safe and have fun while fly-fishing. Don't fish in a lightning storm. Unlike a one iron, God can hit a fly rod. For fun, relax when you're on the streams. Leave your Smartphone and/or Ipad in the truck. If your cast is not doing what you want it to, turn sideways and watch the beauty of it as you make it. Too many wind knots, find something that blocks the wind and get behind it. If your flies have gotten smaller over the winter and it's harder to tie them on, get bigger flies. Cold water in your waders is easily solved, don't wade so deep.

His critique might sound like, "I think if I'd used my 6-weight instead of the 5 the wind would not have affected my cast as much. Also, by starting my double haul one smidgen sooner I should be able to get another six inches of distance. Further, if I roll my thumb to be more on top of the grip my mending will be smoother and have a better drift. What do think?" I look at him and say, "Are you talking to me? Because if you are, after having watched you catch one fish after

I believe by following my safe and fun rules not having a million-dollar payday or a pod of beautiful women following you around will not be missed.

Beebe and Buck discussed how their families raise beef, humane techniques for handling the cattle, and the importance of respect for the land and animals. The ladies left goody bags for the students filled with recipes, beef nutrition facts, and other beef industry-related information.

Head Start, local schools observe Children's Mental Health Day

By Ace Stryker
The Southern Ute Drum

Administrators and counselors from Southern Ute Montessori Head Start and Ignacio public schools met May 2 to discuss how to promote children's mental health.

The meeting was timed to precede May 3, National Children's Mental Health Awareness Day, a program of the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Charlene Schank, program director for Head Start, said the importance of children's mental health cannot be overstated because it heavily influences later development.

"Children's mental health is something that we take very seriously," she said. "By teaching them at a very young age how to cope with some of those things, it builds resiliency for the future."

Schank said children today face greater challenges in areas like relationship development because they're often exposed to media such as video games that influence their thought processes.

"All of their choices have to be split-second choices," she said. "It's OK to stop for a moment before you make a decision."

To help children understand how relationships are formed, Head Start hosts weekly "TLC groups" in each classroom to encourage bond-building between children and teachers. The school's parent handbook also includes information about social-emotional child development.

And parenting, naturally, is key, said Jennifer Diethrich, school counselor at Ignacio Intermediate School. Whether a child has a dependable support system is the single biggest factor affecting risk for mental health issues, she said — though sometimes the best support comes from outside the family.

Schank said on average, between 10 and 15 percent of Head Start's nearly 100 children receive one-on-one attention from trained experts.

Eileen Wasserbach, executive director of Southern Ute Community Action Programs Inc., said disseminating information about children's mental health issues is half the battle.

"There hasn't been a lot of awareness about mental health issues," she said. "[Some] parents haven't been really well trained."

Southern Ute among nations at 'Gathering' powwow

The 28th annual Gathering of Nations Powwow returned to the recently renovated University of New Mexico arena, "The Pit," on April 28 - 30 in Albuquerque. Dancers and spectators from across the United States filled the venue for the cultural event. Live music performances took place on "Stage 49." Powwow celebrations culminated with the crowning of a new Miss Indian World following Saturday evening's grand entry ceremony. The crown went to Marjorie Tahbone of Nome, Alaska. Tahbone hails from the Inupiaq and Kiowa tribes.

Tribal members invited to dedication of new museum

Media release
Southern Ute
Cultural Center & Museum

Invitations have been sent to all members of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe for the Circle of Life Tribal Dedication at the new Cultural Center and Museum on Saturday, May 14, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

This event is free and open exclusively to tribal members, who are encouraged to take part in the dedication and blessing of the new museum. Tribal members will have the first opportunity to experience the new museum before it opens to the public Saturday and Sunday, May 21 – 22.

The opening program will include remarks by tribal dignitaries and museum leaders. A special banquet, catered by the Sky Ute Casino Resort, will be served. A video documenting the construction process through a lapsed-time camera will be presented on a continuous loop screen in the Multipurpose Room. Attendees also will have an opportunity to view a multi-screen production of tribal history in the Circle of Life Theater.

“We are grateful to many tribal members who offered input about what the new museum should look like, from students at the Southern Ute Indian Montessori Academy to tribal elders,” says Robert Burch, board chairman for the museum. “We are looking forward to giving everyone the opportunity to see for themselves just how inviting this museum really is.”

Construction of the new museum has been supported through the generosity of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe. Burch reiterated that the museum’s mission is to preserve and promote the history and culture of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe and other Native Americans so young people and the community will always be known and remember what it means to be Southern Ute.

Once the museum opens May 21, admission is always free to all tribal members. General admission for non-tribal members is $7 per person, and children ages three to 14 are $3 each. Children under age three are free. Regular hours are Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.; Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The museum is closed Mondays. More information is at www.southernutemuseum.org or 970-563-9583.

On April 21, Southern Ute Drum staffers were given a preview of the facilities and exhibits at the Southern Ute Cultural Center & Museum prior to the upcoming tribal member dedication on May 14. An opening for prospective donors will follow on May 20. The museum then opens to the public on May 21 and 22.

photos Jeremy Wade Shockley/SU DRUM

The new museum features many exhibits and displays that may be of special interest to tribal members:

- Important details of passages in tribal history are presented through interactive exhibits in the Permanent Gallery.
- The museum’s Temporary Gallery will feature a basket exhibit, including contemporary creations made by White Mesa basketweavers.
- Many of the artifacts housed in the museum’s galleries showcase the artistic skills of Southern Ute tribal members, particularly exquisite examples of intricate beadwork.
- Twenty-six artifacts have been loaned to the museum from the Smithsonian’s National Museum of the American Indian. Other major institutions also have loaned materials that are on display in the new museum.
- Oral histories are recorded and catalogued in the library, which also includes an extensive collection of books and films by and about Southern Ute Indian tribal members.
- A meandering stream in the Welcome Courtyard and native plants and medicinal gardens make the 8.5-acre campus especially attractive in the early spring.

Artifacts on loan from Smithsonian

Twenty-eight Ute artifacts arrived May 27 at the Southern Ute Cultural Center & Museum on a long-term loan of 3 years from the Smithsonian Institution’s National Museum of the American Indian in Washington, D.C. The artifacts were climatized for a day and then unpacked, while condition reports generated and mounting began onto custom mounts. The artifacts will be exhibited in the Permanent Gallery.

SW Invitational: Cats in mix's middle

By Joel Priest
Special to the Drum

Speed and power. Two traits usually among the most prominently visible in athletics, and the two most controlling of the Ignacio High track-and-field teams' fortunes in 2011.

Both were well-displayed as the Bobcats competed against a more suitably-sized field — only six other teams participated — at the Dove Creek Southwestern Invitational April 30 at the Montezuma-Cortez Panthers' facilities.

Michelle Simmons captured the squads' only individual win, tying Mancos's Aimee Johnson with a best of 4'8" in the high jump, and also scored the girls' only second-place result — in the 100 meters, clocking 13.45 seconds — in helping the Lady 'Cats amass 16 points. And half of fifth with Antonito High.

Colton Wyatt flung the discus an even 111 feet, securing the boys' only runner-up award, and also took third in the shot with a 39'9" heave, helping the IHS boys rack up 54 points and sole possession of fourth place. The two disciplines have been a focus of the program this season; a combined eight Bobcats competed in Cortez, while only one solo sprint (the 100) or distance event was contested.

Shane Richmond placed third in the discus (110'11") and fourth in the shot (38'1.5"), and Christian Knoll was 11th (74'10") and 14th (26'4"), respectively. Kelton Richmond took 11th in the shot (30'0"), and Austin Haire was seventh in the discus (87'4").

Kiana Thompson also did the throwing double, finishing ninth in the girls' discus (61'9") and 12th in the shot (25'2"). Bonnie Lucero (8th, 26'1.5") and Jayce Stricherz (13th, 24'10") also represented Ignacio in the crowded shot put event.

ADDITIONAL RESULTS: Boys' 100 Meters — Isaiah Harrison (10th, 13.71), Shane Richmond (11th, 13.72), Christian Knoll (12th, 14.55); 4x100 Relay — 2nd (52.20); 4x200 Relay — 3rd (1:41.67); Pole Vault — Ethan Pearson (3rd, 11'6"), Dusty Mangus (4th, 11'0").

Girls' 100 Meters — Carly Barborinas (10th, 15.20); Long Jump — Katelyn Silvers (7th, 11'9").

TEAM SCORES: Boys — Mancos 160, Bayfield 157, Dolores 79.5, IGNACIO 54, Antonito 24, Dove Creek 22.5, Nucla 0. Girls — Bayfield 206, Dolores 147, Dove Creek 66, Mancos 40, IGNACIO and Antonito 16, Nucla 7.

Results from M-CHS' Invitational on Monday, May 2, were reported after the Drum went to print. Up next for the Bobcats will be the Terry Alley Invitational in Pagosa Springs May 7 (9 a.m. start), and it will be the final state-qualifying meet on IHS's itinerary.

The San Juan Basin League Championships are slated for May 13 – 14 in Grand Junction, Colo.

With teammate Garrett Becker (left) ready to defend, Ignacio's Tyler Young (20) fires to the plate against Nucla April 30, a Mustang aboard at second base behind him. Ignacio fell 11-1 in Game 1 at SunUte Field, then lost a 19-18 shootout in Game 2.

Bobcats fuel morale for districts

By Joel Priest
Special to the Drum

Amends needed to be made, and Christian Rockwell took it upon himself.

Picked on by the visitors' bats during a seven-run outburst — shifting the advantage back into their favor — in the top of the inning, Ignacio's second baseman led off the bottom half with a daring dash to stretch a single to right-center into a double. And re-rile up his teammates in the dugout.

A walk to nine-hole hitter Pedro Vigil then followed, and Tyler Wancura followed with a short single up the middle to begin a fresh cycle through the order. Mark Garcia then singled to left, plating Rockwell. After three-man Tyler Young struck out, Jesse Vigil knocked a single to center and brought in Pedro Vigil and Wancura. Orion Watts, back from a major knee injury sustained in basketball season, then singled to score Garcia, quickly putting Ignacio ahead 18-17.

And doing so against a Nucla hurler who'd earlier dominated in front of his closest critics.

first-inning, bases-loaded jam after Garcia and Young singled and Pedro Vigil walked. Goforth then mowed down Bobcat after Bobcat (seven in a row at one point), finishing with Jeff Herrera to end the sixth inning — the Mustang's 17th 'K' in a complete-game four-hitter.

Young (L; 2 IP, 3 H, 2 R, K) smacked an opposite-field triple in the Ignacio sixth after Garcia flew out — the only out not recorded via strikes — to center-fielder Jonathan Denney. He scored on a Jesse Vigil single to right, snapping the shutout, but Goforth fanned pinch-hitter Ryan Brooks and then retired Herrera to finalize an 11-1 Nucla victory.

Offensively he was intentionally walked twice, drew a conventional base-on-balls, then drilled a bases-clearing double in the NHS sixth, off the first pitch he saw from Wancura (IP, H, 3 R, K), who'd plunked both Seth Knob (2-3, 3 R) and Nick Rushing and walked Brad Campbell.

Brice Steffan and Morgan Rummel followed Goforth in the order, and each went 2-4.

Later, Steffan — who opposed

Denney tagged up and scored on the play, tying the score at 18-18, before catcher Blyade Harrigan — who replaced Knob — ripped a double to left and plated Campbell for the go-ahead score.

His lumps taken, and right arm loosened after beginning in right field, Goforth — with Steffan now unable to get the win — froze Rockwell, got Pedro Vigil to fly to right, then Wancura on strikes (so ruled by the umpire after Wancura put a hand out to apparently draw a beanball) to preserve the 19-18 win.

Using a strong fastball to enhance a slower curve, Goforth totaled six K's in his three-inning relief stint, making 23 for the doubleheader and 31 total — in three wins — against IHS in the teams' season series.

Steffan (3.2 total IP, 6 H, 8 R, 4 K), in fact, could have received two no-decisions. Herrera scored to tie the game at 2-2 through two innings, and Steffan was pulled in favor of Rummel. But the Bobcats — after leadoff hitter Garrett Becker was ejected for profanity in the field during the top of the third — tagged Rummel for five runs on four hits, a walk, and a hit batter (Wancura, who replaced Becker).

Steffan then re-entered and finished 1-2/3 innings more, but was pounded for six runs in IHS's fourth, triggered by a lead-off triple by Young (3-4, 3 R, SAC-FLY, RBI), a three-base error off Denney's glove from Jesse Vigil (2-5, 2 R, 4 RBI), and a Watts (4-5, GR-2B, 3 RBI) double to right.

Campbell finished with five runs scored for NHS, though batting just 2-for-2 (he also walked three times), while Riddle and Steffan (4 RBI) each went 3-5, and Arnold 2-6 (3 R, 2 RBI).

Wancura finished 2-4 and scored three times, and Brooks was 3-5 with two ribbies. Young, in an odd day for pitchers, was credited with the loss — dropping him to 1-3 in 2011 — and blown save, as Ignacio finished the regular season with a deceptive 4-12 overall (2-7 SJB�) record.

Up next for the Bobcats will be the 2A-District 2 Tournament, May 7 at Canyon View Park in Grand Junction, Colo. SJB� champs Dolores (14-3, 9-0) will also attend, along with Paonia, Meeker, and Rangely from the Western Slope League. Nucla (11-6, 6-3) and Dove Creek (1-16, 1-8) will compete in the 1A-District 1 Tournament, with only one team advancing to regionals.

From Grand Junction, the top two teams will advance to Region I against the two best from 2A-District 1 — essentially the Southern Peaks League — next weekend at Delta High School. La Veta and Sargent — an Ignacio victim this season — are the early D-1 favorites.

Ignacio's Jeff Herrera (3) takes a cut against Nucla with a teammate in scoring position during the April 30 doubleheader at SunUte Field. Ignacio fell 11-1 in Game 1, then lost a 19-18 shootout in Game 2.

Not often in baseball do three generations of a family get to witness a fourth playing the sport. Even rarer is the occurrence when those three generations assemble at the same game, and even rarer still when that gathering requires a three-hour drive, minimum, to and from home.

But with parents, grandparents, and great-grandparents watching from SunUte Field's smooth, concrete seats, Nucla senior Justin Goforth controlled the Cats as few have in recent seasons — including Dolores' Austin McCracken — during Game 1 of the San Juan Basin League twinbill April 30.

Working unscathed out of a

A wrench in the works

Ignacio's Angel Paul (5) slyly gets a boot between those of Telluride's Morgan Fansler to stall a THS attack during their doubleheader at Down Valley Park on April 22. The Lady Bobcats played aggressively throughout, and especially so against the Lady Miners' second team, but fell by matching 7-0 scores in 3A Southwestern League action. The Lady Bobcats' match at Ridgway the next morning was postponed — to be played this week (results unavailable at press time) — and the team received even more bad news soon after returning. The April 30 match against Pagosa Springs would be forfeited due to multiple academic-ineligibility issues; it would have been IHS's home finale. Prior to facing RHS, Ignacio (0-9-1 overall/SWL) traveled for the rematch — also completed after the Drum went to print — with Center.

Congratulations go out to the two Frost brothers, Hunter G. & Jack III, for an awesome youth bowling season

They are members of the LaPlata County Youth Bowling league at the Rolling Thunder Lanes. Jack III (age 14) ended the season with some impressive awards. On January 22, 2011 he bowled 11 strikes in a row and was given an award from USBC and the LaPlata County Youth League. He ended that game with a 277. Then several weeks later he would do this amazing feat again bowling 11 strikes in a row and ending that game with a 279! He also received awards for high personal game of 279 and high series with a 685. He also finished the season with a 88 average!

Then, not to be outdone by his older brother, Hunter G. (age 12) took home top honors as 2nd half season champ and then bowled against the 1st half season champ and came away with overall season champion! His other awards include high personal game of 214, high series of 575, and high handicap series 770. His final average was a 138, which is a big improvement from when he first started the season! Congratulations again on a fine season!

We are all very proud of your accomplishments. They will now be headed to Aurora along with their teammates to the Colorado State Youth bowling tournament. Last year their team came in 2nd out of 146 teams in their division and missed 1st place by 2 pins! Good Luck, have fun, and happy bowling!

To the 4 women who helped me succeed

Thank you for all of my success to my mom, Nova Burch; Aunt Ernestine Burch; Aunt Cindy Buckskin; and Aunt Lavara Thompson.

You have given me an opportunity to learn and understand the world by having us live in the city. When I was afraid to fail, you told me to believe. With your words of encouragement, I graduated high school with honors. You told me to always push myself and strive to be the best; with this support, I finished college.

Throughout my career, I have surpassed all of my expectations to be the best. There was never one moment of importance, but many so amazing moments that were shared with four strong women who supported me with their wisdom, love and their high expectations for me to be an achiever — and more importantly, a great mother.

I would like to say Happy Mother's Day to my mom and my aunts who have shared their words of encouragement and wisdom over the years to stay strong and always face challenges as a time to succeed. As of today, my success is shared with my family, along with words of wisdom and never-ending support.

Thanks from house fire victims

We, Victor and Dolores Atencio, wish to thank the Red Cross and the Southern Ute Victim Services for providing us with a place to stay at the Sky Ute Casino Resort after the night of the fire, April 9 to 16.

Thanks to the casino's restaurant waitresses for being so kind. We also wish to thank neighbors, friends, relatives, and the crowd that was present to comfort us and make sure we were OK. Not forgetting the fire department from Los Pinos Fire Protection District, Upper Pine and Durango Fire District — we really appreciate them fighting the fire trying to save our house. It turned out OK; you did a good job.

Thanks to the Ignacio police, the Southern Ute police and for the help that we got from the area policemen. There sure were a lot of red blinking light vehicles, fire engines and police cars.

Victor B. Atencio

Hunting for eggs

photos Robert Ortiz/SU DRUM

The brisk morning April 23 didn't keep the youth at home as they dragged their parents to the Southern Ute Police Department's annual Easter egg hunt. The hunt brought hundreds of the young and the young-at-heart together to claim some of the bounty of eggs strewn across the SunUte Community Center's multi-purpose fields. Don Folsom, SUPD community resource officer, said a total of 4,000 eggs were up for grabs. Different age groups (left) take turns on various sections of the fields; the Easter Bunny (above) makes his annual appearance via the Los Pinos Fire Department's fire truck. The Easter Bunny helped Folsom with the countdown to ready the kids before the hunt began and took time to pose with countless children — and a few adults.

Ft. Lewis seeks tuition bill support

By Ace Stryker
The Southern Ute Drum

The Colorado Commission of Indian Affairs granted its support April 26 to a U.S. Senate bill that would direct the federal government, not the State of Colorado, to pay for out-of-state Native American students to attend Fort Lewis College in Durango.

Under the terms of a 1910 agreement, the state pays tuition costs for all Native American students who attend the state-run college. That's become a heavy burden on the state, which in the past 25 years has spent more than $110 million for such students, many of whom are not state residents. As a result, the program "is at risk of being reduced by the severe budget constraints of the State of Colorado, thereby jeopardizing the education of many talented Indian students from around the nation," according to the text of Senate Bill 484.

To alleviate the problem, Sen. Michael F. Bennet, D-Colo., introduced the bill March 3, after which it was referred to the Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions. It asks the Secretary of Education to pay tuition costs for out-of-state students, while the responsibility for Colorado residents remains with the state. The net change would be invisible to Native American students, who would continue to receive free tuition regardless of residency, but would relieve Colorado of the obligation to pay to educate non-resident students.

Fort Lewis President Dene Kay

"It is a simple bill. It simply says that the federal government will take over the tuition waivers for the non-Colorado Native American students."

- Dene Kay Thomas, FLC president

Thomas explained the bill during CCIA's quarterly meeting at the University of Denver's Sturm College of Law, requesting the commissioners voice their support for the bill.

"It is a simple bill. ... It simply says that the federal government will take over the tuition waivers for the non-Colorado Native American students," said Thomas, who added that 85 percent of the college's approximately 800 current Native American students are from out of state. "I ask for your support for this effort to receive federal help for a program that is so vitally important to Native Americans."

Lt. Gov. Joe Garcia, who presides over the commission, said passing the bulk of the bill to the federal government would keep the tuition waiver from becoming a target of state budget-cutting talks, protecting Native American students' promise of a free education at Fort Lewis.

"It costs the state a great deal of money for the nonresident tuition. It does seem that it ought to be a federal obligation," he said. "[The bill] does not cost the state anything; it does not risk education for native students, whether they're Colorado residents or otherwise."

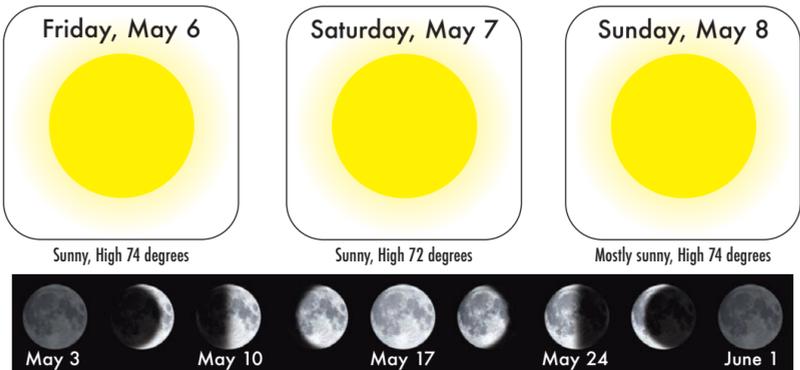

Southern Ute Chairwoman Pearl Casias, in her first CCIA meeting as leader of the tribe, voiced her support for the educational opportunities available at the college.

"We are a very strong believer in education," she said.

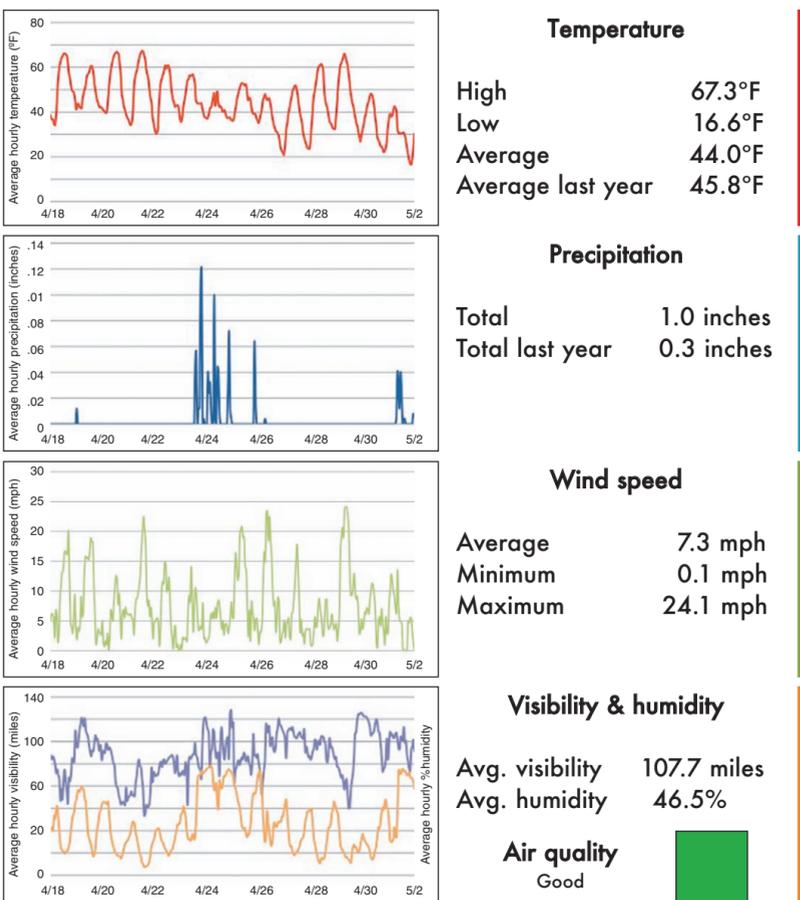

According to the bill, Fort Lewis grants more bachelor's degrees to Native American students than any other institution in the country, awarding 95 degrees in 2009 — more than 13 percent of all degrees to such students in the country. The student body during the 2010-2011 school year represented students from 124 different tribes and 35 different states. About 20 percent of all students were Native American.

The CCIA unanimously approved supporting the bill. Thomas said the National Congress of American Indians and the Native American Rights Fund, among others, have already voiced support.

Renovating the tipi

On Tuesday, April 26, workers set up fencing and began the prep work required to replaster and repaint one of Ignacio's historic monuments, the aging tipi that has for so long been a permanent fixture at Ute Park. The renovations will include a plaster coat, repairs to the interior's woodwork, an anti-graffiti seal coat, and a commissioned artistic rendering of the original mural. The original art (left) has deteriorated from extreme age and exposure to the elements; a contract worker (above) cleans up debris from the tipi's aging and repeatedly vandalized interior.
