Native Lens Media Fellowship turns focus to Tribe

Film shorts highlight Indigenous health

By Divine Windy Boy
THE SOUTHERN UTE DRUM

The Southern Ute Indian Tribe welcomed members of the Native Lens Media Fellowship to learn about story development, production, and post-production practices during a weeklong workshop, which took place from Monday, Feb. 27 – Friday, March 3. The fellows produced two short films that premiered in a showcase during the Durango Independent Film Festival on Saturday, March 4. Fellows Shannon Spencer, Israel Duran, and Laelah Jaye-Kizzia worked to create a film about Indigenous Health featuring Southern Ute tribal elder Cassandra Atencio, Indigenous youth Rhianna Carel, Cyrus Naranjo, Yllana-Chanelle Howe, and Bird Red as they learn ice climbing techniques at the Ouray Ice Park in Ouray, Colo. – the ancestral homelands to the Ute people.

Native Lens and Vision Maker Media had announced the first Native Lens Media Fellowship in early Dec. 2022, the fellowship gives Indigenous youth the opportunity to learn the craft of video production and digital storytelling. Seven fellows learned hands-on from Indigenous film director, producer, and writer Brooke Pepion Swaney who is best known for her films, “Daughter of a Lost Bird,” “Ok Breathe Auralee,” and “Buster’s Mal Heart.” The fellowship took place in person and on location throughout the Southern Ute landscape, three Native

Heritage Events Assistant Rhianna Carel is smiling as she reaches the halfway mark of her climb, for many participants this is their first experience ice climbing. Despite their individual fears, each participant successfully climbed the wall.

Lens fellows highlighted Indigenous health and what it means in terms of the Ute people and how they practice good health. Fellows Shannon Spencer, Israel Duran, Laelah Jaye-Kizzia worked alongside employees of SunUte Community Center, Behavioral Health, and the Cultural Preservation Department to film interviews and their experiences ice climbing on a trip to the Ouray Ice Park.

“Working with them [community members] was amazing – everyone was super supportive of what we were trying to achieve. This whole experience couldn’t have been done without any participants.” Spencer said. “Shout out to everyone that helped make this happen— shout out to Cassandra and everyone at Southern Ute, you know their energy was immaculate and it felt like I got invigorated through this experience.”

Pine River Indian Irrigation Project: Phase II update

By Joseph Bukosky, Soil and Water Conservationist
WATER RESOURCES DIVISION

The Water Resources Division (WRD) concluded the second phase of construction on the Pine River Indian Irrigation Project (PRIIP) in December of 2022. This project’s main objective was to enhance the water delivery system for tribal members across an estimated 5,132 irrigatable acres on the PRIIP. The phased approach for rehabilitation efforts focuses on improving diversion control at critical locations like canal and lateral headings, upgrading flow measurement capability, increasing the reliability of water delivery, and reducing maintenance and associated costs.

COLORADO TRANSPORTATION

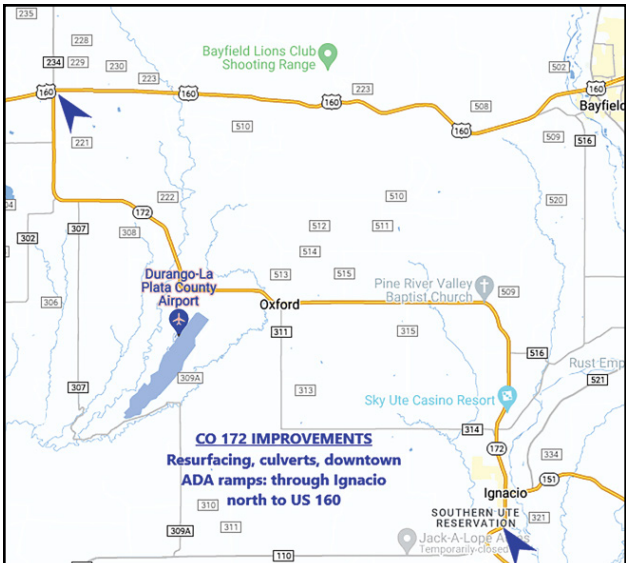

CDOT begins project to improve CO Hwy 172

Work zone from Ignacio to US 160 at Elmore’s Corner

Staff report
COLO. DEPT. OF TRANSPORTATION

The Colorado Department of Transportation and contractor Oldcastle SW Group, Inc., will begin surface treatment work on CO Highway 172 Monday, March 13. Work will take place through the town of Ignacio and north to the US Highway 160 junction at Elmore’s Corner. Commuters driving on CO 172, the local route to the Durango-La Plata County Airport (DRO), will need to allow themselves at least 30 minutes of extra travel time. The project is scheduled for completion by late December 2023.

The initial phase of the project will involve culvert replacement in three locations and deep-patch repairs in two locations where the road is severely damaged. Once culvert replacement and roadway repairs are completed, paving will likely begin in June, between Mile Point (MP) 7.7, at Shadow Spirit Drive, just south of Ignacio, and MP 24.35 south of the US 160 junction, or Elmore’s Corner. Paving operations will be done in two phases - a bottom and top application.

Resurfacing and improvement work is set for CO 172 from south of Ignacio, through the town and will extend for 16.7 miles to just south of the US 160 junction at Elmore’s Corner.

“CO 172 is a critical transportation route that services busy traffic to the regional airport. The highway also supports daily commuters, recreators, farmers, ranchers and commerce between Ignacio and the access point of US 160 at Elmore’s Corner,” CDOT SW Regional Transportation Director Julie Constan said. “This is a sizable project that has been a high priority for our local Transportation Planning Region members. This multi-faceted project will greatly improve the condition, safety and mobility for all highway users.”

Irrigation water flows through the Southern Ute Reservation, crossing tribal allotments northeast of Ignacio, along County Road 516. Consistent snowpack is vital to farmers and ranchers in the Pine River Valley each year who depend on the water for maintaining their agricultural operations each season.

WATER RESOURCES DIVISION

Tracking snowpack, drought conditions, and forecasts

George Gavrielides, Water Resources Specialist
WATER RESOURCES DIVISION

Snowpack has been great since the last drought update on Jan. 9, and continues to increase as our region receives more snowstorms. As we are nearing spring and irrigation season, the Southern Ute Water Resources Division (WRD) decided to send out a drought-snowpack report to update everyone on how our area is doing and what this year's irrigation season could entail. This report will describe the current snowpack, drought conditions, and forecasts.

SNOWPACK

Snowpack across the western United States, including Colorado, is above average. Colorado's Western Slope has had above average snowpack for all of 2023, which has been great. Southwest Colorado river basins currently have 142% of Normal Snow Water Equivalent (SWE) which should provide a great runoff season to fill most reservoirs and provide a good irrigation season.

The Ignacio Community Collaborative Rain, Hail, and Snow Network (Co-CoRaHS) station has recorded 2.95 inches of liquid precipitation so far this year. That amount is substantial compared to the amount of liquid precipitation on March 6 for the previous three years. The Pine River watershed is currently at 144% of median SWE, which will lead to a great runoff season — filling the Vallecito Reservoir.

In fact, you may have noticed the Pine River has higher flows right now and that's due to Vallecito releasing water to make room for all the inflows from runoff this coming spring. Vallecito is currently 59% full and needs 48,000 acre-feet (AF) of water to fill. However, projections show there is 182,000 AF of water in snowpack storage above Vallecito, which is why they are releasing now to make room for all that extra water that will melt and come down to the reservoir.

Date	Liquid precipitation (inches)
3/6/2023	2.95
3/6/2022	1.17
3/6/2021	1.64
3/6/2020	0.74

Liquid precipitation amounts recorded by Ignacio CoCoRaHS station.

The Florida River watershed is currently at 151% of median SWE. This trend is much higher than last year and the 30-year median which is great news. Lemon Reservoir is currently 43% full and needs about 22,000 AF of water to fill. The current storage levels and inflow forecasts suggest Lemon has a 90% chance of filling this year based on 1991-2020 hydrology, so the Florida irrigation season will no doubt be better than the last few years. As runoff season begins this spring and the WRD receives more info, we will notify tribal irrigators and water users about irrigation season forecasts.

For those interested in how other watersheds are trending, the Animas watershed is currently at 116% of median SWE, the La Plata watershed is currently at 122% of median SWE, and the San Juan watershed is currently at 126% of median SWE. Snowpack is good right now and more snow events will maintain our snowpack. The seven-day forecast shows some precipitation for our area over the next week.

DROUGHT

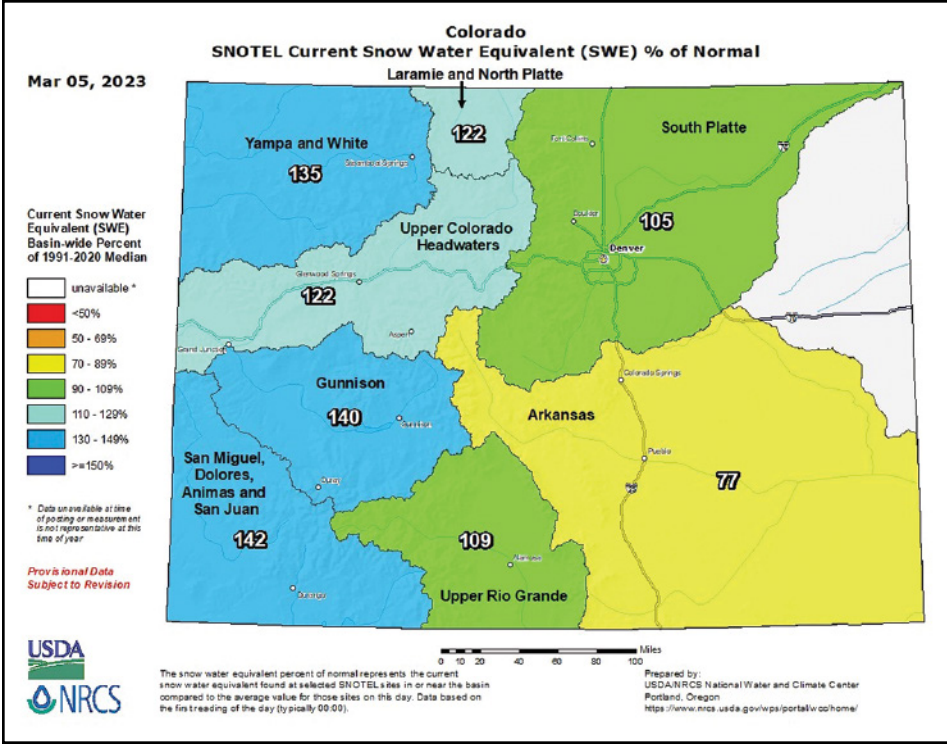

Western Colorado is still doing pretty good in terms of drought. At the time of the last drought update, Jan. 9, Southwest Colorado was still mostly in an "Abnormally Dry" drought condition. Currently, the region is not experiencing any drought conditions thanks to the great snowpack we've seen. The Southern Ute Indian Reservation is also not experiencing any drought conditions except for a small area in the eastern part of the reservation.

Colorado and the Southern Ute Indian Reservation's drought conditions are both doing a lot better than at this time last year. The drought forecast ending March 31, shows Southwest Colorado continuing without drought conditions, which would be a great start to irrigation season.

FORECASTS

Although the forecasts haven't been the most accurate this winter, they still provide some insight into the upcoming spring irrigation season. The March, one-month forecast shows our area having above average precipitation and below average temperatures which has been the trend for 2023 so far. The March-May, three-month forecast shows our area having the opposite: below average precipitation and above average temperatures. Likewise, the April-June, three-month forecast, shows our area also having below average precipitation and above average temperatures. These spring conditions would be less than ideal, but anything can change, so take these forecasts with a grain of salt. More information

Green Cabbage Stew

Ingredients:

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 medium onion, diced
- 2 celery stalks, sliced
- 1/2 medium cabbage, chopped
- 2 carrots, sliced
- 2 medium potatoes, chopped
- 1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning (or 1/4 tsp each: dried oregano, basil, thyme, rosemary)
- 1/2 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 2 cups broth (vegetable or chicken)
- Salt and pepper to taste

Directions:

1. Heat oil over medium-high in a large pot. *
2. Add onions and sauté until soft, about 3 minutes.
3. Add celery and garlic, sauté for 2 minutes.
4. Add cabbage, carrots and potatoes, seasonings, and broth, stir to combine.
5. Cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to simmer for 20-30 minutes or until potatoes are soft.
6. Salt and pepper to taste.

*If adding stew meat or pork, do so at this point, cooking until browned, about 10-15 minutes. Drain any excess fat. Proceed to step 2, adding additional oil as needed.

WHY YOU SHOULD APPLY

Enrolling In Alternate Resources

Why You Should Apply

- Generates revenue to the Southern Ute Health Center, which allows us to:
 - Buy new equipment
 - Expand services
 - Hire more staff
- Saves the Southern Ute Indian Tribe money
 - The Tribe would not have to pay for services out of the Tribal Health Benefit Plan for Tribal Members
- The Southern Ute Health Center is required by law to exhaust all applicable alternate resources
- Could result in a denial from the Purchase/Referred Care (PRC) Program if you do not apply
 - You may then be responsible to pay the bill
- Access to non-emergency transportation
- Allow us to expand our Purchase/Referred Care Priority (Currently at Priority Level 1)

The Tribal Health Department has made enrolling our patients in alternate resources (Medicaid, Medicare, VA, etc.) a priority.

If you are contacted by a Southern Ute Health Center Benefits Coordinator, we respectfully ask you to take their call and listen to what they have to say. Their job is to help you enroll in an alternate resource.

Does it Cost Money?

There is no cost to you to apply. The process takes about an hour to an hour and a half. One of the Southern Ute Health Center Benefits Coordinators will help walk you through the process.

POSITIVE INDIAN PARENTING

Honoring our Tradition by Honoring our Children

Positive Indian Parenting (PIP) has been used for over 35 years and remains popular today because the teachings are timeless. Historically, we had rich teachings that helped children grow up safe with strong families. Colonization threatened those teachings—our Native families were being separated and traditional practices were at risk of being lost. PIP was developed in the 1980s to fill this void and was designed to help parents and families remember our traditional teachings and apply them in the modern world.

In part one of each session we will discuss examples of traditional practices and teachings from several different tribes. Instructors also share teachings from local areas and communities. Part two of each session discusses how to apply those teachings and values today. Complete all 8 sessions to receive a certificate.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AWARENESS

StrongHearts celebrates six-year anniversary

Staff report
STRONGHEARTS NATIVE
HELPLINE

StrongHearts Native Helpline celebrates its six-year anniversary operating a culturally appropriate helpline for Native Americans and Alaska Natives affected by domestic and sexual violence. It's a celebration of breaking down barriers to safety and empowering Native people across the nation that has kept advocates fueled and the number of contacts growing.

“We’ve seen monumental growth in our contacts and our ability to provide support and advocacy to our relatives,” StrongHearts Native Helpline Chief Executive Officer, Lori Jump said. “The statistics clearly show that our relatives are seeking what has been missing for years – a connection to culturally appropriate, anonymous and confidential support and advocacy.”

In the first seven months of operation, StrongHearts tallied 468 contacts. However, that number grew each subsequent year. By the end of 2022, StrongHearts advocates had answered more than 40,000 contacts via call, text and online chat.

StrongHearts met the ever-increasing need for advocacy by incorporating additional support systems and expanding hours of operation:

- In 2020, online chat and sexual violence advocacy were launched.
- In 2021, text advocacy was launched, and hours of operation were expanded to 24/7.

This past year, StrongHearts filled key leadership positions with Sonia Palmer, chief operations officer and Chelsee Singleton, human resources manager who work to support the growth in staff and infrastructure. To sustain continued growth, plans include:

- Working more closely ly with tribes and tribal events.

- Increasing external relations and outreach efforts.
- Bolstering staffing structure and support for employee wellbeing.
- Leveraging data and resources to advocate for change at a policy level.
- Increasing the capacity for long-term sustainability.

CULTURE MAKES A DIFFERENCE

“Culture makes a profound difference in building trust, safety, and belonging,” Jump explained. “Our advocates are Native and our culture is the basis for providing the most welcoming, understanding and caring form of advocacy. It is on a path toward healing that StrongHearts advocates provide peer support, crisis intervention, safety planning, referrals to Native-centered service providers and general information about jurisdiction and legal advocacy.”

REMOVING BARRIERS TO SAFETY

StrongHearts was born out of the knowledge that in spite of alarmingly and disproportionately high rates of violence experienced by Native Americans only a small percentage reached out for assistance. While there are many reasons why victim survivors do not reach out, for Native people, barriers to safety include a lack of available resources and a lack of trust between Native people and organizations outside of their communities.

Before offering advocate support 24/7, victim-survivors who called after business hours were given the option to transfer to the National Domestic Violence Hotline and very few chose that option. Choosing to wait for a StrongHearts advocate further exemplifies the need for culturally appropriate support and advocacy.

StrongHearts advocates are available 24/7 via call or text 1-844-7NATIVE (762-8483) or chat online at strongheartshelpline.org.

Native American Fatherhood & Families Association (NAFFA)

Native American Fatherhood & Families Association (NAFFA) created and designed this program for fathers and mothers using a Native American approach. The goal of the program is to strengthen families through responsible parenting. NAFFA teaches parents to connect with their heritage as they become actively involved in the lives of their families. NAFFA welcomes non-natives to participate in our program. When a foster parent or step-parent comes through the program, connections are more fully developed with other parents in the community, thus creating a stronger support network.

Parents, your children are right behind you and they will follow you.

This class is free of charge and consists of 7 weekly sessions that will last up to two hours. We ask that you commit yourself to completing each session. You will need access to a video camera and speaker (smart phone or laptop computer will work) and an area free from distraction. Reflecting on 22 years of Montessori

By Mari Jo Owens, Principal
SOUTHERN UTE INDIAN
MONTESSORI ACADEMY

Due to the articles I have been writing, some people have asked me about the beginnings of the Southern Ute Indian Montessori Academy. In an article dated Sept. 1998 in the Denver Post, by Post Staff Writer, Electa Draper, she wrote “The [Southern Ute] Tribal Council resolved this month (1998) to open a private school next year (1999), preschool through second grade. Its purpose is not only to preserve Ute language and culture but to also improve the quality of education... of Southern Utes.” During this time, the Blue Sky School, with kindergarten and first graders, was functioning at the SUIT Education Center, while plans for a new school and training in the chosen curriculum were taking place. With the Tribe choosing the Montessori method due to its similarities with native teachings, 19 staff members at the then Southern Ute Head Start, became trained in Montessori philosophy. When the school opened, the Ute language became the cornerstone of the school. On Oct. 25, 1999, the groundbreaking ceremony for SUIMA took place. Less than a year later, on Sept. 6, 2000, SUIMA opened its doors to preschoolers and lower elementary students. In November of 2000, the infant and toddler building was fully constructed, as was the SUIMA dining hall. Some of the newly hired staff came from the Southern Ute Head Start while others were from the public realm. As the students grew older, and more students attended, the upper elementary classrooms were put to use. We are soon to end our 22nd year, already looking at what the 2023-2024 school year has in store for us.

MONTESSORI TIDBITS

On Jan. 6, 1907, the first Montessori school was opened in Rome. The name of the school was Casa dei Bambini which means “Children’s House.” Since the opening of that school, there are over 15,000 Montessori schools around the world. Maria Montessori passed away on May 6, 1952. During her lifetime, Maria Montessori had been nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize three times. Since the founding of Casa dei Bambini, thousands of teachers and guides have been trained in the Montessori method. The Southern Ute Indian Montessori Academy was the first Native American Montessori school to earn its accreditation.

Harley Monte instructs the small class of tribal and community members on how to say greetings in the Ute Language at the Southern Ute Education Center on Wednesday, Feb. 22. The Ute Language Class was hosted by participants of the SILDLI program, which requires students to instruct six hours of Ute language classes.

Tribal member Marie Joy and her daughter, Maleina Carel, listen carefully to the phonetics of the Ute alphabet before repeating back to the instructors. The class also allowed instructors to receive feedback from elders and Ute speakers as well as beginners on the content.

This annual award is in memory of Elbert J. Floyd and is presented by Mr. Floyd's children and grandchildren to a deserving Southern Ute student.

BOBCAT BULLETIN

Ignacio School District looks to spring season

Strategic Plan meeting to be held at Ignacio High

By Christopher W. deKay,
Superintendent
IGNACIO SCHOOL DISTRICT

The school year is half-way complete and there have been many recent successes. Academically, Ignacio sent 30 middle school students and ten high school students to the regional science fair competition. Many were awarded ribbons and awards for their hard work. There will be two middle school and three high school students representing Ignacio at the State competition in April. Congratulations to all students and sponsors ... we are proud of your efforts!

We also want to acknowledge the athletes who completed their recent winter sports seasons. The High School wrestling team sent four athletes to the State competition. There were two boys and two girls who competed very well against the State's best. Both boys and girls basketball also represented the community well at the regional basketball tournament this past weekend. The teams fought hard against 3A competition as their seasons came to a close. The middle school girls were league champions in girls basketball. They were undefeated against much larger schools. We are proud of all of our athletes and coaches who showed commitment and dedication in their respective winter sports. The lessons that they are learning will stay with them for a lifetime.

The four-day school week received a lot of positive support in a recent survey of students, staff parents, guardians, and community members. Almost 85% of respondents are still in favor of the four-day school week. Attendance and academic growth were reported to be improving compared with last year by respondents. Fridays were cited as important for family time and to catch up on schoolwork. We will have the school calendar for next year available shortly.

Chris W. deKay
Superintendent

There is going to be an important Strategic Plan informational meeting at Ignacio High School, Monday, March 13 at 5:30 p.m. – a light meal will be provided. Please come to the meeting to learn about the progress the school district has made on the Strategic Plan. We have worked hard to stay true to the mission statement “Together we will engage, empower, and prepare all of our learners for the future.”

Universal Preschool has moved into Colorado. The State will fund all four-year-olds to attend preschool for up to 15 hours per week. Children with qualifying factors will receive 30 hours per week. The Ignacio

School District will partner with Ignacio Early Learning Program and SoCo-CAA to provide educational services for our children. Please get signed up as soon as possible at UPK.Colorado.gov. There is a lot of research to show that the continuity of care will have far reaching positive effects for youth who are exposed to early education.

The winter has been a tough one and very unpredictable. While we always appreciate the moisture, the school has had to negotiate snow days and then had to schedule make-up days to ensure that we meet both district and state requirements for contact hours for students. With the four-day week, we committed to making up instructional time on Fridays as opposed to scheduling snow days in the calendar as we have done in the past. Having to make up three snow days proved challenging and required flexibility by families and staff. Next year, we will identify specific Fridays for make-up to ensure that everyone has plenty of advance notice. I appreciate your patience and flexibility while we work through our first year of the four-day school week.

Spring Break is fast approaching, and we are looking forward to some sunny days and warmer temperatures. As always, I am honored to serve in this school district and in our community. Our staff will continue to work hard to improve and to make a positive impact on our youth. Thank you for your continued support.

Art Camp Dancing Spirit Community Arts Center

Dancing Spirit Community Arts Center is offering week long Art Camp each month during the Ignacio School Districts Summer Break. Each day will include games, activities, arts & crafts and a lunch break. Cost for the week is $165 and we may have limited scholarships available. Each student needs to bring a water bottle and a sack lunch each day. Please be aware that we will be spending time outside each day, so a light jacket and sunscreen are recommended.

For more information or to register, please call us at 970-563-4600 or register online at <http://www.dancingspiritgallery.org/register-online-.html>

Pre-School Coming to Ignacio School District

AUGUST 2023

SIGN UP NOW

Governor Polis has cleared the way for Universal Preschool (UPK) across the state. The Ignacio School District and IELP will be working in collaboration to serve our pre-kinder students. All children who are four years old (one year away from kindergarten) will qualify for at least 15 hours per week beginning in August of 2023. Children with at-risk factors will qualify for 30 hours per week.

Please consider signing up for preschool in Ignacio as soon as possible. It must be done on the State website at UPK.Colorado.gov. Please select the Ignacio Early Learning Program (IELP).

It is important to know how many students will be attending in the fall to ensure staffing, classrooms, and resources will meet the needs of our learners.

IGNACIO COMMUNITY LIBRARY

ICL: Diverse, unique, multicultural

By Marcia R. Vining
IGNACIO COMMUNITY LIBRARY

In starting to write today's article a number of adjectives crossed my mind to describe our community and our library. Diverse, unique, multicultural all come to mind. Then I began reflecting on the uniqueness of the different areas of La Plata County, how distinct and varied they are. This applies to the four La Plata County libraries as well as the communities themselves.

I think it's truly wonderful that we have four very unique libraries in this county.

Durango, being the largest, offers a number of special programs and services. Two items they have which are not available at the other area libraries are a Patent and Trademark Resource Center and book club kits. The newest library district in Colorado; the Southwest Colorado Library District is unique in that it is housed within two schools. This is wonderful for youth access to the library but certainly comes with its own particular set of constraints as well. The Pine River Library in Bayfield is closest to Ignacio patrons but fortunately, is part of a different consortium and so offers a largely different collection, including digital items.

While virtually all libraries focus on youth literacy, here at ICL the literacy kits, book bundles, and family literacy events are among the services and materials that set us apart. Our Native American and Southwest collections, as well as our maker kits and classes are part of our unique offerings. Lastly, very soon ICL will be the only local library with a bookmobile! We're very excited about this new opportunity to serve the community and cannot wait to see how our patrons respond.

As with other areas of life, there are portions which overlap and portions that are distinct. Just as with individuals, I believe that our commonality and diversity is what makes each local library special and poised to support and assist everyone in the community. As always, we'd love to see you at the library!

Lanier signs off from KSUT

All attention was on Stasia Lanier during her final day at KSUT. Lanier has spearheaded marketing and promotional campaigns. In addition, she's produced a series of live in-studio performances, even taking the helm as station manager for a few years. Lanier's last day at KSUT was Thursday, March 2 – retiring from KSUT after 30 years of dedicated service to the non-profit radio station.

Signing off from her last show, broadcasting from KSUT, Stasia Lanier has hosted Music Blend shows and San Juan Sunrise on Saturday mornings.

Lanier clearly appreciates one of the gifts she received during her retirement celebration. About retirement, she says "...less stress, more fun, time outdoors, travel, more time with family as everyone is aging. I definitely have some angst over it."

sign phase, comprising one siphon on the Dr. Morrison Canal, eight large concrete drops on the Dr. Morrison Canal, the Severo Canal heading, the Frost Lateral heading, the Goodnight Lateral heading, along with nine others.

Structures selected for this construction phase were determined by condition assessment reports' rankings for critical maintenance. Wide-ranging renovations comprised of the demolition of spalling concrete, the forming and pouring of new concrete floors, walls, and structures, extensive concrete patching and repairs, replacement of non-functioning canal gates and operating components, removal of vegetation and sediment from structures and canal ways, and installation of safeguards like railing and walkways which were completed during the 2021-2022 irrigation off-season. During the fall of 2022, Phase II structures received a polyurea coating which provides a durable waterproof barrier and will prolong the concrete's service life.

With the successful completion of Phases I and II, which were funded in part through the Tribal Animas La Plata Project Resource Funds, WRD looks to begin various other projects, including securing funding for Phase III and IV shovel ready designs and proceeding with engineering work for canal and lateral headings such as the Ute Creek Long Crested Weir on the Pine River Canal and the Nannice Canal Diversion on the Los Pinos River.

Please contact the Southern Ute Water Resources Division at 970-563-9482 with any questions or to learn more about current and future projects.

Drought comparison for Colorado (3/1/2022 vs 2/28/2023).

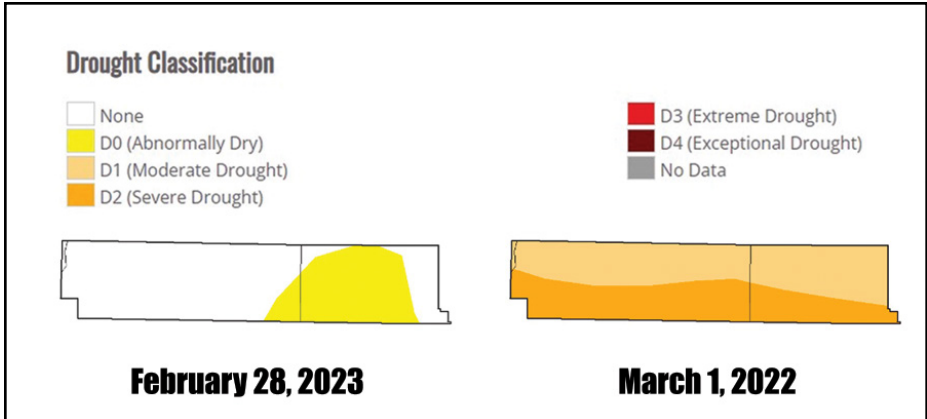

can be found here: <https://www.colorado.edu/resources/intermountain-west-climate-dashboard>.

Having above average precipitation and below average temperatures in March will help increase and maintain snowpack which is what we need to prevent another very early runoff like last year. Snowpack is great this season and will lead to a good start to the irrigation season. The reservoirs will be more full than last year, and drought conditions are presently non-existent in our area.

One major caveat to this information is although the western portion of the United States, including our area in Southwest Colorado, has had a wet year so far, and is not currently experiencing any drought conditions, this doesn't mean we are saved from the megadrought. It will take several winters like this one to bounce back from the megadrought. However, we must start somewhere, and this winter has been a nice break from major drought, low snowpack, and poor runoff.

The Southern Ute Water Resources Division will keep track of snowpack, drought conditions, and forecasts and update the Task Force when major changes occur. Things can change, but for the time being, neither the WRD nor the Task Force need to take further actions regarding drought. If you'd like more information on snowpack, drought, and forecasting resources, feel free to reach out to George Gavrielides, Water Resources Specialist for the Southern Ute Indian Tribe, at 970-563-2932.

Native Lens: Filming at Ouray Ice Park

Native Lens Fellows, SunUte Community Center, Cultural Preservation, and Behavioral Health employees attentively observe ice climbing guides as they learn the proper way to use gear for belaying climbers. Participants were provided with all the necessary equipment including boots, crampons, harness, helmet, and ice tools to ensure their safety while climbing.

Cultural Heritage Events Assistant, Yllana-Chanelle Howe takes a turn at climbing during the Ouray Ice Park trip.

Sharing the importance of mental health, Native Connections Program Specialist, Precious Collins hands out resources to practice gratitude. Collins gave lots of encouragement to participants throughout the trip and offered positive reassurance.

of ice climbing after being approached by Fellowship Instructor, Brooke Pepi-on Swaney and SunUte Director, Robin Duffy-Wirth. “When we talk about Indigenous health, we are thinking about many things such food, hunting, hiking, and overall relationship to the land and ceremony— in this conversation [with Swaney and Duffy-Wirth] I referenced back to my experience at the All In Ice Fest in Ouray this past January and hiking into the canyon and going ice climbing with some of the Southern Ute Cultural Preservation team and elder Cassandra Atencio. Not only were we in a group of Indigenous climbers and guides, but the event itself was a BI-POC event that also included Queer and Trans climbers,” Collins said. “Based off of that experience and seeing Cassandra hike in the canyon and climb that ice wall, I thought it would be great to duplicate or share a similar experience with the young Native film makers and some of our own youth in the community.”

Following this conversation between Collins, Swaney, and Duffy-Wirth, a trip to ice climb at the Ouray Ice Park is coordinated via Collins and Ouray Ice Park Events Coordinator, Christina Lujan. On Tuesday, Feb. 28, the group traveled to neighboring Ouray, Colo. to begin the filming process. This trip provided participants with all necessary climbing equipment and the opportunity to learn from professional ice climbing guides. Everyone takes to the ice throughout the afternoon, each participant explored the ice and for many this experience is a first. Many climbers agreed that this experience was eye opening and served as a positive emotional release, reflecting on themselves and being open to trying new things proved to be a common theme.

Collins reflects on the trip and expresses that it is important to practice making outdoor connections, promoting good mental health. “It’s important that we make space for outdoor connections. Mother nature has a great way of being an outlet for the stress and worries we sometimes might hold,” Collins said. “It’s okay not to feel okay. It’s important that when we find ourselves finding it hard to understand our emotions and feelings or maybe we just can’t ‘shake it off,’ that it is okay to reach out for professional help.” Tribal Historic Preservation Officer, Cassandra Atencio played a key role in the trip and within the film serving as a mentor for all involved in this creative process. In a brief interview, Atencio shared her pride in the filmmakers for being open to trying new things and to the community members involved for being willing to share their cultural knowledge and exploring ancestral lands. “Seeing the kids there and their eyes light up, and then trying something different – everybody, even the young filmmakers coming out of their box and reconnecting, that was the key moment for me,” Atencio said. “Looking around and feeling very proud, looking at all of you – big shout out to Precious and Robin, all of us coming together to make this happen was very inspiring about what teamwork can do and moving forward we want to continue to bring the youth out here to do different programs.”

Native Lens Fellow Laelah (Lalabah) Jaye-Kizzia and mentor Brooke Swaney begin filming climbers as they begin their journey up a small ice wall. Swaney works to tell contemporary Native stories and throughout the week of filming, she helped to guide the Native Lens Fellows throughout their productions. Swaney is notably known for her films “Daughter of a Lost Bird,” “Ok Breathe Auralee,” and “Buster’s Mal Heart.”

After a week of filming and editing, the Native Lens Fellows premiered their films at this year’s Durango Independent Film Festival located at the Durango Arts Center. The small theater is filled with local Durango viewers, supporters of the Native Lens fellows, and the people highlighted in each film short. Fellows – Spencer, Duran, and Kizzia shared highlights from their climbing experience and expressed their gratitude to the people of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe, and everyone who was involved during a brief interview following the screening event, Saturday, March 4.

“Whenever I actually got to go up on the ice and climb it was super scary. I’m really terrified of heights—when I got down to the ground it was really releasing, because I finally got over something that I haven’t been able to really approach,” Native Lens fellow Kizzia said. “I think it was really cool to experience someone else’s culture—I’d like to thank Cassandra and Precious for all of their words, and Cassandra especially we had a little moment, she’s really opened my eyes to a lot of things that I need to work on within.”

“Coming into this, I wasn’t really sure how this would affect me in any way, but it did—a lot of the youth are very smart, like [Bird Red] he’s well-spoken and reviewing the footage, going back and listening to what he had to say was pretty touching and eye opening, same with [Cyrus Naranjo],” Duran said. “Even on the way up [to Ouray] when we were in the van with [Precious Collins] she said such good things and it really resonated with me—when we premiered the film, I really hope it resonated with the audience as well.”

The trip and production proved to be a great success for those involved in this unique experience, moving forward participants hope to continue exploring Indigenous health and being open to trying new things.

Upon reflection, Collins shares on the importance of connecting to nature as Indigenous people. “Mother nature has a way to teach us and humble us, we get an opportunity to also connect to our ancestors in doing and seeing much of what they have seen, did, and heard. It’s a beautiful experience, one that you can’t get from working out in a box.”

UMU Tribe voices support for Dolores River protections

Staff report
OFFICE OF U.S. SENATOR BENNET

Colorado U.S. Senators Michael Bennet and John Hickenlooper recently introduced the Dolores River National Conservation Area and Special Management Area Act to protect over 68,000 acres of public lands in Southwestern Colorado.

In 2008, the U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management requested that the Dolores River Dialogue – a coalition of diverse interests in the region – convene a broad-based community group to study pressing management issues in the Dolores River corridor from McPhee to Bedrock, including the possibility of a Wild and Scenic River federal designation. Through consensus agreement, the working group, known as the Lower Dolores Plan Working Group, decided to explore the possibility of an NCA and appointed a Legislative Subcommittee, which included counties, water managers, conservation groups, landowners, recreationists, energy companies, and staff from federal elected officials’ offices, to draft a legislative proposal for further vetting.

“Our Dolores Project allocations are the centerpiece of our Colorado Water Rights Settlement,” Ute Mountain Ute Chairman, Manuel Heart said. “The Dolores Project provides clean drinking water for our people and the businesses that sustain our economy including our 7,700 acre Tribal Farm, cow herd and corn mill.”

“The NCA legislation protects our Dolores Project allocations by legislatively resolving the conflicting authorities of the Bureau of Reclamation to manage McPhee Reservoir allocations and Forest Service/BLM authorities below McPhee Reservoir,” Heart said. “The legislation also protects Tribal cultural rights and practices in the NCA and involves the Tribe in collaborative efforts to manage for sensitive native fish below McPhee, another key to protecting our Dolores Project allocations. The Ute Mountain Ute Tribe thanks Senator Bennet for his leadership on bringing these issues to a successful resolution in this legislation.”

“Over millions of years, the Dolores River carved a canyon renowned – not just in our state, but across the country – for its majestic red rock walls that tower over the ponderosa pines. For the people of Southwest Colorado, the river is more than just a landmark – it’s the lifeblood of their communities and way of life,” said Bennet. “This bill was written in Colorado, by Coloradans who live, work, and depend on the Dolores River. It represents a balanced, sensible way forward to resolve many of the long-standing disagreements, protect the river for all parties, and provide long-term certainty for generations.”

San Miguel County has been among those actively participating for over a decade in regional stakeholder discussions to determine the best locally driven long-term management for the Dolores River collaborating between Dolores and Montezuma Counties and the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe to protect natural resources and existing use.

“A rapidly changing climate highlights the urgent need for better protections for some of our wild-est public lands in the state. The lands in this legislation are a key piece of a broader landscape scale conservation effort to connect important wildlife corridors and protect the biodiversity in the greater Dolores River canyon country. Years of science-based collaboration helped move these efforts forward and we are excited that these lands near the Dolores are getting the attention they deserve,” said Jeff Wid- en, The Wilderness Society.

“Here in Colorado, we are preserving and protecting our world-class outdoors, supporting our thriving agriculture industry, and expanding opportunities for outdoor recreation, and legislation to protect our treasured land in the Lower Dolores River canyon is a great step towards achieving these goals,” said Governor Jared Polis.

Bobcats bow out in 3A's Sweet 16

Ignacio loses 56-36 to The Pinnacle

By Joel Priest
SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

For being a team which won just five regular-season games this winter, the Ignacio Bobcats certainly didn't play the part in the play-offs and entered the Class 3A-Region VII Tournament's championship game Saturday afternoon, March 4, having grabbed three of their most recent four.

Which included a heart-stopping 45-42 upset of event-hosting Peyton – once Panther senior Logan Nickell's attempted three-pointer finally rimmed out at the buzzer after it appeared to be forcing overtime – the previous evening.

"They won a game they're not supposed to win – over the number-seven team – to advance to the Sweet 16," stated IHS head coach Chris Valdez. "Last year we got beat out in the Round-of-32 in 2A, so we made it one round further ... beat the home seed on their floor with a big crowd! I was proud of the kids."

"You know, this season's been up and down," he continued. "Going back into 3A, where the competition's so much better – we had four top teams in our league, and two of them were 4A! – it really helped us prepare for this."

Seeded 26th in the 3A State Tournament's Round-of-32, the 'Cats found themselves facing

However, led by senior guard Eppie Quintana, Ignacio looked primed early on to pull off another shocker. Responding quickly to Pinnacle senior guard Robert McClinton's first three-pointer, Quintana sank already his second to regain the designated guests an 8-7 advantage. But after Bobcat freshman Ambrose Valdez knocked down a near-trey re-tying the score at 10-10, the 'Wolves got five straight McClinton points – a triple, plus a breakaway layup off Mendoza-Lechuga was injured midway through the third quarter and did not return to action.

By Joel Priest
SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

It wasn't as though Craig Macari arrived in Kersey, Colo., holding a grudge.

But after his Woodland Park girls survived a mutually memorable Class 3A-Region VI semifinal Friday evening, March 3, by a 50-49 margin the head coach couldn't help but wonder if he had a squad which could help him right a weathered wrong.

"See that 2004 banner up there?" he said, pointing up at the ceiling of event-hosting Platte Valley's gymnasium. "In that State Championship year, when I was with a different school – I was at Kent Denver – they beat me by three."

Macari was recalling a 57-54 loss in the semifinals, though KD bounced back – under the classification's old double-elimination Great Eight format – to beat Pagosa Springs in the third-place game.

But in order to even have a shot at the powerful Lady Broncos in the next afternoon's tourney championship, his Lady Panthers, seeded 22nd in the State Tournament's opening Round-of-32, needed to first negotiate No. 11 Ignacio – just as eager to impress inside the back-to-back State Champions' house.

"The bus ride was so long on the way up here, but this was great," said junior guard Maci Barnes. "A lot of Ignacio fans showed up and it was awesome to hear them cheering for us."

"We were ready," junior center/forward Solymar Cosio said. "We didn't want to come up here and not give it our all, especially after traveling eight hours. And win or lose, we put a hundred percent on the floor; that's all we could do."

"I think that 3A's good for us; it pushes us more," said sophomore guard Marissa Olguin, speaking about the Lady Bobcats' upward transition this winter from the program's longtime Class 2A designation. "And we had to keep pushing; when Darlyn got hurt we knew we couldn't stop."

Having already seen WPHS go on a 10-0 scoring run during the last 5:36 of the first half, authoritatively erasing their 11-10 first-quarter lead which maxed out at 16-12 early in the second, watching junior guard Darlyn Mendoza-Lechuga need assistance off the court to begin icing what appeared to be a left thigh/hip injury (from which she did not return) could have been catastrophic for the Lady 'Cats.

"Everybody was a little scared, I think," admitted senior guard Laci Brunson, "but we had to regroup. There was still a lot of time left to play basketball. We were still in it and just had to keep fighting."

Trailing 24-21 with 4:18 left in the third quarter, Ignacio truly got into the battle Brunson's quarter-starting three-pointer had signaled was brewing. And with Barnes hitting two free throws, Cosio powering inside for two baskets, and senior forward/center Harmony Reynolds converting a steal into two points with 55.6 seconds left, IHS had closed to 28-27.

a steal – before Quintana booked a basket shortly before time expired, keeping IHS close at 15-12.

Unfortunately, the 'Cats would get no closer.

Outscored 11-2 during the first 5:32 of the second stanza, Ignacio fell behind 26-14 before boss Valdez called a timeout with 2:28 remaining until halftime. And for a moment, the pause seemed to serve the Bobcats well; junior center/forward Gabe Cox maneuvered inside for two points and junior guard Devante Montoya followed with a trey cutting The Pinnacle's lead down to 26-19. Fouled by Ambrose Valdez with 0:01.4 left, junior forward Jacob Madrid answered by making one of two free throws and the Timberwolves went back to their locker room up eight.

Reportedly averaging more than 30 points per game, McClinton began the third quarter with a baseline jumper and, after IHS crept back within ten points, 33-24, via three Quintana FTs in four tries, later closed it out sinking two of three FTs after being fouled by Montoya on a three-point attempt – with 0:00.6 to go – right in front of the designated home team's bench.

Down 41-26 beginning the final frame, the Bobcats attempted one last push but found themselves losing even more ground as McClinton went 7-of-8 from the charity stripe during the deciding eight minutes and totaled the last nine of his game-high 31 points as The Pinnacle ultimately prevailed 56-36.

"We had an unfortunate injury ... had a key player come out, and it was next-man-up for us," said Timberwolves head coach Ron Guerrero, alluding to senior reserve Philip Pham seriously hurting his lower left leg with 5:04 left in the first quarter and IHS up 5-4. "It's a team effort, from our starting five all the way down to our 14th man; I'm just so proud of the guys."

Madrid (3 points) and senior center Noah Estes (6) combined to offset Ignacio's low-post duo of Cox (6) and senior forward/center Dylan McCaw (2), plus sophomore alternate Charlie Pargin (0).

"(Cox) was definitely a factor on the floor. We got to watch some film on him and wanted to front him, double-team him so we can limit his touches in the paint," Guerrero explained. "Estes really plays hard defense, tries to keep a big out of there, and we can come with Madrid to help. They're pillars of our defense down low; without those two ... we don't do very well."

Seniors Izaiah Parsons and Daunte Dominguez also scored six points apiece for the 'Wolves (16-8 overall), while sophomore Nehemiah Arellano and freshman Caleb Arellano each chipped in two.

Quintana totaled 14 points in his final game for the Bobcats (8-16), Montoya matched his two threes in registering ten points, and Valdez finished with four. Junior guard Phillip Quintana was held scoreless and fouled out with 3:36 left in the contest.

"We need to start games better, and that's going to be a big part of the plan next year—not coming from behind," said Chris Valdez. "I didn't kid myself thinking we could stop (McClinton), but in a zone we could hold him to a few shots and we just didn't step out. We gave them ... wide-open shots and were on our heels the rest of the game."

Advancing to the 2023 CHSAA Class 3A State Championships' Great Eight phase, the Timberwolves were to next face 2-seed Salida (23-1) Thursday morning, March 9, inside the University of Denver's Hamilton Gymnasium.

"Right out our back door!" beamed Guerrero. "We're ... so excited for the guys to experience the pageantry, the playing, and it's all about them believing in each other, you know? The way we've played this year ... we can't wait to get to DU."

IGNACIO 45, PEYTON 42: In the victory over the hosting Panthers, Cox led the 'Cats with 16 points, eight coming during the pins-and-needles fourth quarter. Montoya made two threes and tallied ten points, while Phillip Quintana sank three treys and logged nine. Eppie Quintana scored five points, Valdez made a three, and McCaw chipped in two points.

Junior forward/center Ayden Breese scored 13 first-quarter points for Peyton (13-9 overall) and ended up with a game-high 24, but PHS couldn't hold an early 16-4 lead. IHS cut the margin down to 16-8 beginning the second, eventually went into halftime down 24-23, and later closed out the third quarter having pulled even at 34.

who'd hit an open jumper after an inbound pass deflected off Olguin's head right into her unguarded hands just prior to Mendoza-Lechuga's exit, managed to drop in a basket but Cosio responded with a buzz-beater at the other end – leaving the score 30-29 going into the final frame.

"It was very energetic, very fun to play in," she said of the overall atmosphere. "We just had to make sure we kept our heads in the game no matter what happened. We had our fans behind us but we had to stay focused on what we had to do."

Assisted by sophomore reserve DaLaney Wesner, Brunson buried a game-tying trey 45 ticks in. Still able to out-muscle Ignacio on the boards, the Lady Panthers rebuilt a 37-32 lead before Barnes cashed a corner three. Motivated by unstoppable senior center/forward Bella Slocum, WPHS answered with a deuce, but Barnes (8 points) then struck from deep off the left wing.

"I'd drained one, then Laci passed me the ball again and I was open, so I shot again," recalled Barnes, still somewhat awestruck by the intense sequence. "I was pretty happy that I was on fire."

"There was a couple times we let 2 (Brunson) loose in the corners, and then Ignacio had a girl ... knock a couple threes down in the fourth – those were huge shots!" acknowledged Macari. "I don't know if she's done that normally all year, but great for her for stepping up tonight."

"There's nights where she's just on; you've got to see that," Cosio (8 points) said. "She's always giving a hundred percent – whether she has four fouls (as she did before her two triples fell) or no fouls – and when she's on, she's on!"

With the Lady 'Cats behind 39-38 but seemingly closing faster and faster, Slocum effectively took matters into her own hands ... and caught IHS off-guard somewhat by taking her own game out to the perimeter. Taking a Kohn pass, she sank an unexpected three-pointer rebuilding WPHS' advantage back up to 44-38. And even with Woodland Park in the one-and, later, two-shot bonus for the final 3:10 of regulation, Ignacio never relented.

Behind 45-40 as Lady Panther junior guard Stella Schroeder went about making three of six FTs down the stretch, IHS just kept coming. Cosio and Brunson netted takes to the hoop as the game clock ticked under two minutes remaining, again bringing the Lady Bobcats back to within one point, and even after Cosio fouled out with 1:46 left the game was still very much afoot.

Brunson (12 points, 6 assists) would make two free throws prior to Cosio's departure, and Wesner (4 points) later finished a breakaway keeping Ignacio within two, 50-48. Woodland Park junior guard Brenna Larsen would soon foul out vying for a rebound, and with 0:23.7 left Olguin (5 points, 8 rebounds) hit one of the two resulting FTs.

Able to then work the clock down to fewer than ten seconds remaining, the Lady Panthers had a chance to effectively clinch victory, but Kohn inexplicably clanked two FTs with only 5.2 ticks left. And with 1.1 to go, following a Macari timeout – in which he must have instructed his players to not foul at any cost – the Lady 'Cats, set to inbound on the baseline, still had hope.

Barnes managed to pass to Brunson, who then heaved a shot needing to fly three-fourths the length of the floor.

The two-handed try, however, fell well short, and IHS' 2022-23 season was abruptly over.

Reynolds, who logged eight first-quarter points, finished with 12 to match Brunson's team-leading count. All told, Ignacio went 13-of-20 from the free-throw line; Woodland Park ended up 5-of-12 during the fourth quarter and 6-of-15 overall. Registering a devastating 15 fourth-quarter points, many via second - or third chance put - backs, Slocum finished with 23 points and a reported 26 rebounds. Kohn totaled eight and ten, Schroeder scored seven points and freshman Karase Broeker five.

"As a whole it was well-played by both teams," declared Macari. "Both made good adjustments to what the other was trying to do, and we got lucky enough to make a few free throws to come out ahead."

Improving to 14-10 overall, Woodland Park advanced to face 6-seed PVHS, which had ripped No. 27 Rocky Ford (10-11) in the preceding semi, 60 to 16. Ignacio, meanwhile, finished 11-11 for a second straight year.

"We're never guaranteed anything," Cosio said. "We just have to leave everything on the floor, whether we're going to win or lose. And we're always going to play to win, never going to play with fear."

"I mean, we only lost by one; I'm so proud of my team for battling," said Brunson. "We're out, but I love my team; this was one of my most fun years."

"All these teams are good, and we're just as good," she continued, recognizing IHS' ability to ball in either 2A or 3A, as well against upper-classification (some in the 3A/4A Intermountain League) teams. "So, I wish Woodland the best of luck tomorrow ... taking on Platte Valley."

AFTERMATH

In the Region VI finale, PVHS bolted out to a 21-2 lead after one quarter and galloped away to a 60-33 win securing the Lady Broncos (17-7) a Great Eight date Thursday, March 9, against 3-seed Colorado Springs Christian (22-2).

Mercifully reclassified out of the former 4A Colorado Springs Metro League and into the 3A (now 3A/4A) Tri-Peaks prior to the COVID-delayed 2020-21 campaign, WPHS made indelible history regardless of the loss:

"The first-ever winning record for girls' basketball at Woodland Park," Macari said. "First-ever trip to the State Tournament, and first-ever State Tournament win. Two years ago, we won three games with, basically, this same group of girls; that's where we've come from."

"Platte Valley's beat some teams in our (league) that we haven't been able to," he added. "Our work was cut out for us, so we'll just ... enjoy the moment."

In general, roof snow will be removed if the snow depth accumulates more than twelve (12) inches or to a level where safety concerns are evident or potential damage to roof or structures may occur. Snow will ONLY be removed from areas where the crew can reach safely from the ground. If you believe you need this service, please contact Construction Services Division 563-0260.

Livestock – Snow Plowing: Plowing snow for livestock is done by the Ag. Division and is low on the priority list. There is a minimum charge of $35 due in advance for all livestock snowplowing. The cost is $35 per hour for the first hour and then $30 per hour for time in excess of one hour plus .35 cents per mile one way for travel time on livestock snow plowing. If you believe you need this service, please contact Agriculture Division, Custom Farm at 970-563-0220.

Please remember to move personal items such as bikes, lawn mowers, water hoses, planter boxes or any other item out of the way, so that they do not get damaged by the snowplows.

Note: 1st) Dialysis Patients; 2nd) the Disabled or Frail Elders.

Please contact department to notify them of early morning doctor appointments.

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS Fiber Optic Construction Contractor for Phase II of the Tribe's Broadband Modernization Project

Southern Ute Shared Services (SUSS), a division of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe (Tribe), requests a written response to a Request for Proposal (RFP) for consideration to enter into a Professional Services Agreement to be the construction contractor for a large-scale broadband fiber optic infrastructure project. The selected contractor will build the fiber optic infrastructure that has already been engineered in advance of the Tribe being awarded a grant through the National Telecommunications and Information Administration's (NTIA) Tribal Broadband Connectivity Program. The Tribe completed all design and engineering work that was the basis of the NTIA application for this phase. Phase II will expand the backbone network from Phase I to build a fiber-to-the-home (FTTH) network reaching most of the native American households within the Reservation (i.e., approximately 1,798 homes). Approximately 300 miles of fiber will be installed with a completion date targeted for December 2025. Email proposal submittals and questions to SUSS: Attn: Delbert Cuthair, Broadband and Digital Equity Manager, PO Box 367, Ignacio, CO 81137. Email: dcuthair@southernute.com, 970- 563-5627. Full RFP details are found online at <https://www.southernute-nsn.gov/broadband-modernization-project>. Proposals will be received through March 31, 2023. The Southern Ute Indian Tribe Tribal Employee Rights Office (TERO) has established a preference for contracting and subcontracting to certified Indian owned businesses. For information on certification, contact TERO at 970-563-0117. The Tribe reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to accept the bid deemed, in the opinion of the Tribe, to be in the best interest of the SUIT.

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS Environmental Consulting Support Services for the Southern Ute Indian Tribe's Fiber Optic Installation

Southern Ute Shared Services (SUSS), a division of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe (Tribe), requests a written response to a Request for Proposal (RFP) for consideration to enter into a Professional Services Agreement to perform on demand environmental services to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), including Environmental Assessments, Categorical Exclusions, Biological Assessments, and general environmental permitting support services for a large-scale broadband infrastructure project. The selected Consultant will enter into a three (3) year contract. All work requested by the Tribe under this RFP will occur both on and off the Reservation in La Plata and Archeleta Counties. Email proposal submittals and questions to SUSS: Attn: Delbert Cuthair, Broadband and Digital Equity Manager, PO Box 367, Ignacio, CO 81137. Email: dcuthair@southernute.com, 970- 563-5627. Full RFP details are found online at: https://www.southernute-nsn.gov/wp-content/uploads/sites/15/2023/03/RFP_BB_Phase-II_Enviro-20230303-Final.pdf . FLY FISHING

Two words

By Don Oliver
SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

Keep out, no trespassing, no fishing, private property, those of us that fly fish hate to find those two words on a sign nailed to a tree or fence post. And, the reason we usually find them is that we haven't done our homework. Since states' rights are inherent in this country, and sometimes usurp federal laws and mandates, different states have different rules and laws for river accessibility. Some states have laws that allow a fly fisherman access to most, if not all, rivers. While other states give the land owner control of the stream bed and banks.

In the October-December issue of Fly Fisherman Magazine an article by Cullen Battle rated ten states on their river accessibility laws. Colorado was one of the ten, and along with Utah received F's for their access laws. Idaho, Montana, Missouri, and Pennsylvania, received A's. As I understand it, the issue for accessibility is based on whether a river was at some time navigable and used for commercial traffic. So, if the river was or is navigable the stream bed, surface water, and banks are public. If not navigable, they're private. There are lawsuits in all that language.

The above explanation leads me to Colorado. Until now the stream beds and banks have been private. Which means, without permission from the landowner, you are trespassing if you are standing on the banks or in the river. You can legally float on the surface, but not touch the stream-bed or banks. Some land and river owners have carried their ownership rights to an extreme and put fences across the river to hamper people from floating on the surface in front of their property. And, to carry it further, some landowners and fishermen, have let the rights arguments escalate to heated verbal confrontations, and in one case, to rock-throwing. The rocks thrown were from a landowner at a fly fisherman floating through the owners property. When this happened, law enforcement was called in. Tempers cooled only slightly, then the inevitable lawsuit was filed.

On Christmas Day, the Durango Herald ran an article by Jason Blevins of the Colorado Sun, about this case. It has made its way to the Colorado Supreme Court, and could bring a change in the stream accessibility laws to Colorado. That raises the question, should the courts or legislature decide this issue? Since, in my wildest imagination, I do not see the Colorado Legislature taking up an issue guaranteed to piss off half their constituencies, we're stuck with a court ruling.

As a riverside landowner, and fly fisherman, I think I see both sides of the argument. The landowner believes that since he owns the land and the water that flows through it, he gets to control its accessibility. It's been that way since private ownership came into being; don't change it now. The fly fisherman, on the other hand, acknowledges I can't trespass across your property to gain access to the river, however, if I can get to the river legally, the stream-bed is public and I can stand in the river and on its banks.

Who's right, and who's wrong? The landowner doesn't want strangers anywhere near his property. He doesn't want the trash and bad behavior that comes with public access. And, he doesn't want the liability of someone getting hurt on his property. The fly fisherman just wants to fish. I have fly fished in states with F's and A's. And, I've caught fish and had fun in all those states. I believe that by doing my homework on access laws in the states I find myself fly fishing, everyone can remain civil and enjoy the day. In Colorado there is an incalculable amount of public water to fly fish. So, the access law has little effect on places to fish. In Colorado, and other states, should you accidentally wander onto private property (and I have) and meet the owner stream-side, just be courteous and respectful. For owners, mistakes happen. Politely let the fisherman know he's trespassing and needs to move on. There is no need for rocks and law enforcement. Everyone loses when this happens.

Reduce your environmental footprint

The average family of four spends $1,500 a year on food that goes uneaten and becomes waste. Land, water, and energy resources can also be wasted during the transportation, preparation, storage and disposal of food products. These activities contribute more than 85% of greenhouse gas emissions even before food waste enters a landfill, decomposes, and begins to generate methane gas, a potent greenhouse gas.
